Valley drivers irked or joyful over '55' speed limit

With more gasoline made available, many motorists are itching to get freeway speeds back up to 65 miles per hour.

But others who commute on these speedways are just as adamant to retain the top legal limit at 55 m.p.h.

Arguments for and against the slower speeds include: "It drives me up the wall . . . It's more relaxing . . . I can't keep my battery charged . . . It takes forever and a day to get there . . ."

Now state legislators, who set the 55 limit to conserve fuel, are getting back into the act.

Separate bills introduced by Sen. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, and Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Los Angeles, call for a return to the higher speeds.

Both bills carry an "urgency" clause and would take effect with Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature.

Walter Pudinski, commissioner of the California Highway Patrol, also asked for a new appraisal of the situation. His officers have been hard-pressed at times to enforce the slower speeds.

"The 55 limit was enacted as a fuel conservation measure," he said recently. "Therefore it is my belief that once sufficient supplies of gasoline are available that the state legislature should consider the reestablishment of the previous speed limits.

He urged, however, that the legislature in its evaluation should consider any positive impact the lower limit has on traffic safety.

"It appears tht imposition of the 55 limit has had an effect on the accident picture, but reduction in traffic volumes probably has had the greater effect.

"In any event, further evidence necessarily must be accumulated to establish the validity of such judgments," said Pudinski.

Local highway patrol officers report that many motorists now stopped are openly questioning the advisibility of continuing the 55 limit now that the gasoline crisis is apparently over.

"With the oil embargo lifted, many don't see the need for it to continue," said Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander. "Also, there is confusion on the part of some motorists who believe the lower speed limit has been lifted."

Compliance with the 55 limit has been a series of "hills and valleys," he noted. "Since the embargo was lifted, the compliance has definitely slipped. Many motorists don't see the need for the lower speed to continue. We have definitely seen an increased speed in the traffic flow."

Unless emergency action is taken, the 55 limit will remain in effect until June 30, 1975. The state legislature enacted the speed limit for an 18-month period, Jones explained.

The local commander said he had "mixed feelings" about the 55 vs. 65. "We had a 65 limit for many years and most have lived through it.

"But the 55 limit in the metropolitan areas has tended to lessen freeway congestion, lessen following-too-closely incidents, and less lane changes. This indicates that the average driver is more relaxed at the lower speed and is driving more defensively than before."

Jones believes the 55 limit has had a dramatic effect in reducing traffic accidents. Citing local figures he reported five persons killed in area traffic accidents the first three months this year, compared to seven last year.

For the same period, the total number of accidents have dropped from 500 to 259.

But Jones said some of the decrease may have also resulted from fewer vehicles being on the freeways and highways because of the scarcity of gasoline.

Should the state lift 55, it would lose federal funds for highway construction, noted Jones. "This is bound to have some influence on the state's decision."

What about the motorists? Should speeds remain at the "relaxing" pace or should they be speeded up? Reactions are mixed.

Jan Norich of Claremont, who works in Los Angeles, said: "65, of course. I'm in a hurry. 55 is more relaxed, but . . . What I'd really like is an express bus.

One motorist who asked to remain unidentified said, "that 55 drives me up the wall on the freeway."

$2 minimum wage wins Senate approval

Action comes on vow Nixon won't veto bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today overwhelmingly appproved legislation that for the first time would bring the required minimum wage to $2 an hour and extend it to domestic servants, all government workers, and retail chain store employes.

The vote, buoyed by a late promise from the White House that President Nixon would not veto the bill, was 71 to 19. The House was expected to add its approval this afternoon.

"This legislation is three years late," said Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., one of its chief sponsors.

The word was flashed to congressional leaders just hours before the Senate and House were scheduled to vote on the final version of the wage package.

Nixon vetoed a similar bill last year as inflationary, and an over-ride attempt fell 25 votes short in the House. But Ken Davis, an aide to Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, told reporters the White House had called early this morning to say Nixon will sign the bill this time.

The package, when enacted, will mean almost immediate pay boosts for about 4 million Americans and will extend federal minimum wage protection to about 20 million others never before covered by the law.

Under the bill, the legal minimum wage would rise to $2.00 an hour on May 1. It would go to $2.10 per hour next Jan. 1 and to $2.30 on Jan. 1, 1976.

The current minimum wage, enacted in 1968, is $1.60.

Fiscal experts estimated the cost of pay hikes to the four million workers now making less than $2 per hour as $1.5 billion annually.

In all, the new law would cover 54 million American workers, leaving just six million not protected by a minimum wage —most of them employed by small retail and service establishments.

The law would apply to all workers regardless of age. Nixon previously insisted the minimum wage for those under 18 be 15 per cent less than for older workers.

For the first time, the law would cover domestic servants —except babysitters and companions —as well as government workers at all levels and retail and service employes of chain stores not now protected.

About three million government workers in schools and hospitals were brought under minimum wage provisions in 1966; the new law will cover the other five million to six million federal, state and local government employes across the country.

The bill would also extend the requirement that overtime of at least time and a half be paid for work exceeding 40 hours per week to about eight million persons previously exempt. That would leave only about 10 million persons not covered by overtime provisions, most of them in transportation.

Nixon promises GOP faithful economy to bring voters back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy will be on the upswing by this fall, and that means that Republican election setbacks this spring will be reversed, President Nixon assured GOP faithful Wednesday night.

In a political pep talk that had his audience cheering, Nixon told the $1,000-a-plate diners not to be overly concerned, because history has shown time and again that when spring brings discontent, fall brings joy.

Without mentioning Watergate, the President said the economy and the cost of living has been the big factor in special House elections in recent months. He predicted that an unsurge in the economy will bring defecting GOP voters back to the fold in time for the congressional elections in November.

"Two great issues move people in campaigns, peace and prosperity," Nixon said in his 30-minute speech. "On peace we are going to have a very strong case to present to the people this fall."

The President said the economy had had some difficulties lately but that "at the critical times in September and October there will be an upturn."

The turnout for the annual fund-raising event was not up to former years, and dinner officials estimated the "take" would be between $650,000 and $700,000. That would be far less than the $5 million average raised by the annual event in normal times, and considerably short of the $3 million contributed by the faithful to dine with Nixon shortly after the 1969 inauguration.

Michigan candidate for governor pulls out; he has cancer

DETROIT (UPI) — Jerome P. Cavanagh, onetime "boy wonder" of Michigan politics, says he is postponing his political comeback and a campaign for governor because he has cancer.

Cavanagh, 45, told a news conference Wednesday he would undergo surgery in April for malignant tumor of the kidney.

Cavanaugh's announcement caught even his supporters by surprise—and left some of them in tears. He had been scheduled to announce the launching of his campaign for the Democratic nomination to challenge Republican Gov. William G. Millikin.

Hearst finalizing plan for $4 million food giveaway

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Amidst growing concern over the fate of Patricia Hearst, the father of the kidnaped girl is finalizing a plan on how to give away another $4 million worth of food when his daughter is released.

Newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst disclosed upon his return Wednesday from a meeting of the Hearst Corp. board in New York, that he would issue a statement today outlining how the Hearst Corp. money would be put into escrow, as demanded by the kidnapers, for spending once Patricia is released.

Hearst's daughter was kidnaped Feb. 4 by the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), which demanded huge food giveaways as a condition which could lead to negotiations for release of the University of California coed.

A $2 million giveaway financed by Hearst and the Hearst Corp., holding company for many of the assets built by the late William Randolph Hearst, all but wound up earlier this week. When that program was announced, Hearst said an additional $4 million in food would be given to the poor if Patricia was released unharmed.

But there still has been no word from the terrorist abductors.

Concern has been voiced by Patricia's finance, Steven Weed, that the SLA might fear Hearst would not honor the $4 million commitment once his daughter was released. Weed attempted to discount that during a television appearance by saying the offer is a matter of public record.

Despite complexities

U.S., Russ pledge to pursue peace formula

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union said in a joint communique today that despite the complexity of the problem of finding agreement on further limitation of nuclear weapons, "there are possibilities for reaching mutually acceptable solutions."

Both nations are determined, they said, "to continue to make energetic efforts to find such solutions."

The communique, issued simultaneously in Washington and Moscow, was released following the completion of several days of talks between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and other Soviet officials.

Both sides expressed optimism that despite the difficulties, they had made progress which would enable the forthcoming summit meeting to be a success.

The communique said:

"An exchange of views was held on a broad range of questions of mutual interest in connection with the preparation for the visit to the Soviet Union of the President of the United States, Richard Nixon.

"The sides noted with satisfaction that the course taken by the two countries toward a relaxation of tension and a major improvement in relations between them continues to be implemented successfully and brings tangible results.

"The exceptional importance of the fundamental decisions adopted at the two previous Soviet-American summit meetings, first of all the basic principles of relations between the USSR and the United States, the agreement on the prevention of nuclear war, and the agreements on the limitation of strategic arms, has been convincingly demonstrated.

"The sides are determined to pursue, on the basis of strict observance of the obligations they have assumed, the established policy aimed at making the process of improving Soviet-American relations irreversible."

State senator claims terrorists are tailing corporate execs as targets

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. John L. Harmer says there is "well substantiated" evidence that terrorist groups are looking for key corporate executives as targets of violence.

Harmer, a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said Wednesday the assertion is based on testimony before two special committees and a conversation with a "senior executive" of an unnamed San Francisco firm.

He said the executive told him he moved from his home to an anonymous apartment on the advice of his company's security force which had been alerted by law enforcement authorities.

Harmer said the executive was told that "at least one and possibly several revolutionary groups had maintained records on a number of key corporation executives, including a diagram of their homes and their pattern of activities."

During a campaign appearance recently in Los Angeles, Harmer warned that "several hundred" key executives are being followed and their homes diagrammed by revolutionary groups.

Harmer said informants who testified in secret before the Senate subcommittee on civil disorders "confirmed the fact that squads of militants were being trained in methods of kidnaping and in other areas of violent behavior."

The witnesses, some of them reportedly prison inmates or former members of revolutionary organizations, were granted anonymity for fear of reprisals.

He said the testimony as well as that of witnesses at hearings of the Select Committee on innovation in the structure and Administration of Public Education "led me to make certain statements which have caused some notoriety and concern."

"It has been suggested that these statements were without substantial evidence," he said in apparent reference to a published report based on an interview with Harmer in which he said he had no certain knowledge that large numbers of key executives had been followed or had their homes diagrammed by terrorists.

"I see no reason to modify the assertion I have made and the evidence for which is well substantiated that there are in our society militant revolutionary groups, who among others, are looking at key corporative executives as key targets of violence," the lawmaker said in a prepared statement.

San Francisco teachers vote to end strike

By United Press International

Teachers voted in San Francisco to end a 20-day strike and return to city schools today while talks went on behind the scenes in an effort to resolve the first teacher's strike in the history of Kansas City, Mo.

The end to the strike by 4,500 teachers in San Francisco came suddenly late Wednesday.

The American Federation of Teachers did an about face on a new wage pact which it had rejected earlier in the day, thus falling into line with two other teachers groups which voted to go back to work.

The other major teachers' group, the Classroom Teachers Association, and the smaller Independent Teachers Association had voted to accept a $6 million one-year package.

The Board of Education said the agreement includes a six per cent pay raise plus a $585 annual bonus for the 1,178 teachers now receiving the top scale of $17,115 a year. A 12 per cent salary increase is included for day-to-day substitutes.

Increased fringe benefits include 10 additional days paid vacation and five additional paid holidays for pre-kindergarten and children's centers teachers.

Only 43 per cent of the city's 76,000 students appeared for school Wednesday, but 70 per cent of the teachers were reported on the job.

In Kansas City, negotiators worked quietly behind the scenes today in an effort to get the city's 2,600 teachers and 62,000 students back to school and avoid a legal showdown between the strikers and school board.

Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Alvin C. Randall Wednesday signed a training order issued March 18, the first day of the strike.

Randall's action set up machinery for possible criminal contempt citations and a multimillion dollar damage suit against the American Federation of Teachers local. He directed the union to appear April 8 for a show cause hearing.

School board petition alleging numerous violations of a temporary restraining order, the union is charged with "actively participating in the interference of service of process of the officers of the union." The union repeatedly urged teachers to ignore back to school orders and the school board closed the city's 98 schools Monday.

Top GOP urges speed in probe

Impeachment prospects are 'much greater today'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conceding the prospect of President Nixon's impeachment is "much greater today" than a month or two ago, a leading Republican senator today urged the House Judiciary Committee to speed its inquiry in the interest of fairness.

Robert Griffin of Michigan, the assistant Senate GOP leader, called on the committee, which is investigating whether grounds exist to impeach Nixon, to permit the President's lawyers to be present at its meetings and to cross-examine witnesses.

The committee has reached no decision on a White House request to let Nixon's lawyers participate in the inquiry.

Aside from what he said were "legal precedents" to permit White House counsel access to the impeachment process, Griffin said in a floor speech, "it seems to me that it is in the national interest and in the interest of fairness to get to the truth, to get to the facts as quickly as possible."

Later, to reporters, he said that by permitting White House Watergate lawyer James D. St. Clair to cross-examine witnesses at Judiciary Committee meeetings, it might "significantly shorten the process by making it unnecessary to have a trial in the Senate."

Under the Constitution, if the House votes to impeach a public official—the equivalent of an indictment—the Senate must conduct a trial on the charges.

"Then you obviously feel we are headed for a trial in the Senate?" Griffin was asked.

"Well, I would have to concede the likelihood seems much greater today than it did a month or two ago," he replied.

He declined, however, to say why he feels the prospects the House will vote to impeach have increased.

"That's a whole other story," he said.

Griffin said he had not talked with anyone at the White House about his speech, but had mentioned it to the ranking Republican on the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, at the regular weekly breakfast of the Michigan congressional delegation this morning.

"I don't recall that he responded," Griffin told reporters.

To the Senate, Griffin said cross-examination is the traditional means of "getting the facts out on the table" and the right should be afforded the President's lawyers at this stage of the impeachment inquiry, not just at a possible trial.

"Isn't it in the interest of everyone to find out as early as possible whether a trial in the Senate is constitutionally necessary?" Griffin asked.

He said he "hoped it would not be necessary" later for the Senate to have to decide whether the procedures followed by the House were fair.

Defendant tells story in youth's burning death

ONTARIO — A defendant in a murder trial testified Wednesday that a Chino youth who died of burns walked into a restroom of White's Garage, slammed the door and there was an explosion and fire on Oct. 26, 1973.

The fire in the Chino Garage at 13215 Sixth St. fatally burned Rodney Almaguer, 14, of 13263 Fourth St., Chino. Two of three men in the garage at the time of the fire, Alexander Jesse Ruiz of 13122 Roswell Ave. and Steve Edmund Lopez, 20, of 1448 Jacaranda St., Chino, are on trial in West Valley Superior Court accused of murdering Almaguer.

Ruiz on the stand Wednesday said he was employed at the garage by the garage owner Gilbert Silva. Ruiz said that Almaguer also worked for Silva on a part time basis. On the night of Oct. 26, Ruiz said he warned Almaguer to stop throwing papers around the garage or he would tell Silva.

Ruiz said that Rodney then left the garage and returned a short time later. "He seemed scared," said Ruiz. Ruiz said Almaguer went into the bathroom, the door slammed, and he heard an explosion. Ruiz told the jury how he and the second defendant in the trial, Lopez, tried to get Rodney out of the bathroom that had burst into flames. Ruiz said they managed to kick the bottom panel of the bathroom door in and help Almaguer outside. Ruiz said when Almaguer walked out of the bathroom, suffering from burns of the face, arms and chest he said, "Alex, Alex, why did this happen to me'."

Ruiz denied threatening to burn the youth and of starting a gasoline fire as other witnesses in the trial have alleged.

giving at La Verne College, favors retaining the 55 limit. "I am assuming the energy crisis is real and long-termed, not just a temporary affair. My understanding is that 39 per cent of the oil in this country is used in automobiles. The 55 limit does conserve fuel."

Nancy Webber, a Pomona College coed, said 55 makes driving safer and more relaxed.

Cathy Foster of Pomona, however, wants the 65 limit returned. "The slower speed is too frustrating, unnecessary and too easy to violate."

Mrs. Sylvia Holstein of Valinda prefers 55 since she gets better mileage on her car. "I think people are more conscious of what's going on around them when driving at 55."

Mrs. Birt Martin of Ontario believes 55 is much better. "There are less traffic accidents and cars use less gasoline. And I feel more comfortable when driving at this speed."

Robert Otto, Pomona's finance director, said 55 should remain at present because of the energy crisis. "I'm sure it saves on gasoline and statistics show there are not as many lives lost or persons injured. The disadvantage is that the freeways were really designed to accommodate high speeds and these are not being used for this."

Regardless of the speed limit debate, truck drivers and motorists towing trailers will not be affected. Their speed limits will remain at 55.

Dayan flies to U.S. with troops plan

By United Press International

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan flew to the United States today with an Israeli plan for troop disengagement in the Golan Heights where Syrian and Israeli guns opened up again in their "war of attrition."

Leaving Tel Aviv, Dayan said there would be no agreement with Syria until the 65 Israeli prisoners she holds from the October war are released.

The Israeli military command said the Syrian gunners opened up in the Golan Heights the 17th straight day, but fire was not returned and Israel suffered no casualties.

"This can certainly be called a war of attrition," a military source said, "and it's still continuing."

In Damascus, a Syrian communique reported heavy exchanges of tank and artillery fire in the Heights.

Israeli newspapers said the plan to be presented to U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger calls for a prisoner exchange, then Israeli withdrawal from 10 to 13 miles from the Golan Heights front.

Syria would get back two-thirds of the land seized by Israel in the October, 1973, war and U.N. peace-keeping forces would receive the rest as a buffer zone, the newspapers said. Israel would not withdraw from the major part of the Heights she occupied in 1967.

News blackout on kidnaping of vice consul

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Mexican and American authorities imposed a tight news blackout today on the kidnaping last Friday of John Patterson, 31, an American vice consul here, by Mexican guerrillas.

Secrecy was so tight that the kidnaping was only disclosed Wednesday, five days after it took place, when U.S. Attorney General William Saxbe inadvertently mentioned it in Washington.

The tight news blackout led to speculation that both nations were caught in a dilemma by their previously announced flat "no-negotiation" policies with kidnapers.

Unconfirmed reports in Latin American diplomatic circles said the terrorists were asking a record $500,000 cash ransom for Patterson's safe return. One press version said Mrs. Patterson had received a note from the kidnapers asking only $50,000 ransom but authorities refused to confirm either ransom figure.

Volcano stages violent eruption in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — Mount Ngauruhoe, one of three volcanoes in central North Island, went into its most violent eruption in 20 years today, tossing rocks the size of cars hundreds of feet into the air.

Government scientists said they believed a lava flow was imminent but did not expect any danger to settlements, the nearest of which is nine miles from the base of the 7,515-foot mountain.

Today's eruption was accompanied by explosions and loud rumblings and threw rocks 700 feet into the air and clouds of ash 23,000 feet.

Government geologist G. Hancox, who flew over the mountain today, said a lava column had risen to within 200 feet of the water rim and could soon pour over.

Dense clouds of fine ash blotted out the sun over hundreds of square miles of North Island during the day and the explosions continued from the volcano tonight.

Mount Ngauruhoe is about 200 miles north of Wellington.

Man saving $20,600 in VA money in pocket is robbed

CHICAGO (UPI) — Noah Floyd is a classic loner.

Floyd, 57, lives alone in a small apartment on Chicago's North Side with a bed, a television set, a chair, a Bible and not much else. He doesn't have a telephone because he doesn't like to talk to people.

He makes $100 a week as a watch repairman and lives on that. Each month he also draws a $245 check from the Veterans Administration as compensation for the lung he lost in World War II.

Floyd always cashes the VA check, puts the money in a plastic bag, and puts the bag in his pocket. He doesn't believe in banks.

Tuesday night, Floyd got off a Chicago "L" train and started to walk home. He saw two young men following him. He started running and he almost made it. But his pursuers caught him in the vestibule of his building.

One grabbed his arm and another slapped Floyd in the face. They went through his pockets and found the plastic bags. There was $20,600 in them.

Police Investigator Frank Capitelli said witnesses reported the thieves came out of the building "laughing and screaming, very joyous."

"It was just a chance street robbery, a chance in a million," Capitelli said.

Hooker loses appeal

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — Xaviera Hollander, the Happy Hooker, has lost her appeal against a conviction in British Columbia provincial court on shoplifting charges.

The B.C. Court of Appeals let stand Wednesday a provincial court decision handed down Feb. 14 against Miss Hollander for stealing three nightgowns worth $48 from a Vancouver department store.

Miss Hollander, who wrote her way onto the best seller lists with her account of being a madam in New York City, had pleaded not guilty to the charge, claiming that she was researching a book on crime.

She was scheduled for sentencing April 4. Miss Hollander also faces deportation proceedings in Canada.

To serve full term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. John W. Dowdy, D-Tex., must serve the final three months of his six months prison term for perjury.

Dowdy was sent to Springfield Penitentiary in Missouri last Jan. 28, action that his attorney said at the time could "amount to a death sentence."

Dowdy, now 62, said he suffered from hyperthyroidism, high blood pressure, an ulcer and "mental and physical stresses and strains."

He was convicted of perjury in a charge that he accepted $25,000 bribe money to block Justice Department investigation of a Baltimore home improvement company.

Ex-POW, wife part

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The wife of former prisoner of war Col. James Lindberg Hughes has been granted a temporary separation from her husband, currently a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in New Mexico.

A District Court judge ordered Hughes to pay Mrs. Dorothy Hughes $1,800 per month temporary child support and to make an accounting of community funds including any spent so far on his campaign.

Hughes was a POW in North Vietnam for six years after his Air Force fighter was shot down in May, 1967.

While her husband was a prisoner, Mrs. Hughes was active in nationwide efforts to gain release of POWs. She also was an unsuccessful candidate for the New Mexico Legislature in 1968.

A 15th birthday

MOSCOW (UPI) — Elizabeth Kissinger had a birthday to remember.

The daughter of the U.S. secretary of state, celebrated her 15th birthday Wednesday and received a gift from Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev. A diplomatic source said Brezhnev was told of the occasion by one of his advisers. The content of the package was not known.

Kissinger, on his sixth trip to the Soviet Union, was accompanied for the first time by his son David, 12, and his daughter Elizabeth. The children have seen the circus and been sightseeing.

Reagan against PUC control of major oil firms

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan told the California State Chamber of Commerce Wednesday he is "unalterably opposed" to placing major oil companies under jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission.

The governor explained during a question and answer session that the oil companies are part of the private enterprise system while utilities are regulated monopolies.

Bills to put the oil companies under state regulation are pending in the legislature.

Reagan also said he could argue both ways on the merits of a unicameral legislature but it would probably be a long time before the people would want to do away with the second house.

On the subject of farm labor legislation, Reagan repeated his support for a secret ballot in union representation elections so that workers would be free from coercement.

'What kind of negotiators are you on behalf of the American people?'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oil company executives came to tell the senators about their problems in the Middle East.

The senators told the oilmen they should pay more attention to places like the Middle West.

The senators were members of a foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, meeting Wednesday. The executives included Joseph J. Johnston, senior vice president of Aramco (the Arabian American Oil Co.).

The senators wanted to know why, when the United States was short of fuel, the companies were making huge profits.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee, noted Aramco's profits rose 350 per cent between 1969 and 1973 —from $700 million to $3.2 billion —while the Saudi Arabian government was raising the price of oil from $3.01 to $11.65 per barrel.

Johnston said Aramco is a "producing" company, not a "marketing" company. It sold its oil to subsidiaries, he said.

"The greater price, the higher the profits, the greater the dividends," Johnston acknowledged. "Yes, sir. There's no way to avoid that."

Church noted there was "very little participation" by the U.S. government in setting of crude-oil prices. "I can think of a lot of things the United States might do to protect the consuming public in the United States, considering the oil companies ride in tandem with the Arab countries."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, asked Johnston, "What incentive is there to keep the price down and thus keep your profit down?"

Johnston said such a question would have to be directed to executives of the companies that market oil in the United States. Muskie noted that the four companies —Exxon, Mobil, Socal and Texaco —which make up Aramco, are the ones who market the oil.

"You're sitting in the cockpit. You see all this. You hear all this. And you say you don't know what is going on," Muskie said.

"It just seems to us," Church said, "that for some purposes Aramco is a company. And for other purposes it disappears."

Muskie said during the energy crisis, the American consumer has been paying more for gasoline but the oil companies were pulling in huge profits, supposedly because of the greed of the Arab nations.

"Are you wholly the victims of arbitary decisions by the Arab countries?" Muskie asked. "What kind of negotiators are you on behalf of the American public?"

Johnston replied, "Today I don't believe we have any major negotiating strengths left."

Church said, "It seems you're the beneficiaries along with these countries. Correct?"

"Correct," Johnston said.

L.A. order enlivens milk battle

CHINO — The Los Angeles County Milk Commission has lifted an order that required pasteurization of milk from the Alta Dena Dairy's herd in the Chino area.

But health officials questioned whether the commission had any legal right to the action, pointing out that the 2,000-head herd is in San Bernardino County.

A spokesman for the dairy said today that Alta Dena will continue to pasteurize its milk until it received some assurance that the commission's action was legal.

The pasteurization order was handed down March 8 by the Los Angeles commission after health officials said some of the cows in the herd might be suffering with brucellosis.

The ailment can cause serious illness in human beings who drink raw milk from infected cows.

The suspected cows were slaughtered, but the autopsy revealed that evidence of brucellosis was inconclusive. The commission then lifted the order but agreed to retest the herd April 8.

Health officials claim that the herd comes under the jurisdiction of San Bernardino County or the state. But the Los Angeles commission says its action is justified because most of Alta Dena's milk is sold in Los Angeles County.

Pair in Kansas linked to canyon death here

Sheriff's investigators indicated today they will seek a criminal complaint against two men held in Kansas in connection with the fatal stabbing March 19 of a Corona man whose body was found in the Live Oak Canyon area near Claremont.

Earlier this week, two men identified only as Johnny R. Thompson, 28, and Roger L. Cox, 29, were arrested in Hodgeman, Kan., and held for questioning. The deputies, returned from Kansas, planned to present their information to the district attorney's office with a request for a complaint, a spokesman said. Meanwhile, Thompson and Cox remained in Kansas.

The victim, J. W. Clements, 49, was found stabbed to death and his throat cut. The discovery was made by a young hiker as he walked along Live Oak Canyon Road. Clements, who was employed in Pomona, was last seen alive by friends the night before his body was found.

By JON MORRIS
P-B Shaff Writer

WALNUT — The Winnett Ranch issue apparently is alive and kicking.

In fact, there are some horse lovers who would like to have their animals kick up some dust at the old ranch site.

Despite fears expressed in the recent City Council campaign that development of the ranch as a community park was "down the drain," petitions presented to councilmen Wednesday night indicated there is still hope for the project.

Hope—as expressed by Susan Snider, a Walnut High School senior and member of Walnut Valley Riders—remains that the 80-acre ranch will be turned into a park.

Miss Snider, 18, handed petitions containing 200 signatures to councilmen and said "I'm not the only one interested is the Winnett Ranch acquisition."

She admitted the projected $1 million purchase and development cost for the ranch was the "controversy." But, "if it costs $30 per person, is it worth it?"

Her main interest, she indicated, was in a larger equestrian facility for Walnut horse owners. "We need a bigger ring for horses. The one we have at Suzanne Park is too small."

A resident of the Gartel-Fuerte area, Miss Snider added that the site contains a building for a new city hall and "facilities are already there for a youth center."

Little League groups are twice the size they were last year, she noted, and "where are we going to fit the new ball parks? Will we shaft the horse owners again?"

Councilman William Cotten, one of the staunch backers of the ranch project, responded to the presentation by saying Winnett has "not been dropped, it's still under study."

Richard Laughter, another councilmember, congratulated Miss Snider on gathering the signatures.

After the meeting, she said the fight had just begun, and those who signed the petitions were high school students. "I plan to visit other schools in town for signatures."

The councilmen received a final feasibility report and plan for development of the ranch at their March 13 meeting. They made no comment then, and referred the matter to a two-member committee consisting of Councilmen William Wentworth and Cotten.

In other business Wednesday, councilmen deferred action on a final tract map for development of a 26-acre industrial park on Valley Boulevard because, officials said, the map was not ready for presentation.

Shakespeare hath said it on streaking

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Psychiatrists, psychologists, sociologists and anthropologists have analyzed streaking with little or no success.

So now let us see what an immortal bard makes of it. Specifically, let's interview that famed authority on kinetic nudity, William Shakespeare.

Q. Mr. Shakespeare, how do you feel about streaking?

A. "Ye gods, it doth amaze me. Twas strange, 'twas passing strange. There is nothing left remarkable beneath the visiting moon. And men have lost their reason."

Q. You apparently regard it as something more serious than a college prank.

A. "There is something in this more than natural. In the gross and scope of my opinion, this bodes some strange eruption in our state."

Q. It is reported that students prepare for streaking by smoking marijuana. Is that true?

A. "A little pot and soon hot."

Q. Why has streaking become so popular?

A. "New customs, though they be never so ridiculous, nay, let 'em be unmanly, yet are follow'd."

Q. I understand you have attended a couple of streakins. What were they like?

A. "Mirthful comic shows. I would not have given it for a wilderness of monkeys. O brave new world that has such people in't!"

Q. Were the streakers completely nude?

A. "Like a naked new-born babe. Like a puff'd and reckless libertine. There's but a shirt and a half in all my company. O shame! where is thy blush?"

Q. Most streaking is done by male students around girls' dormitories. How do the girls react?

A. "Clean starved for a look."

Q. Sometimes the girls join in. What happens then?

A. "It adds a precious seeing to the eye. A woman is a dish for the gods."

Q. Wowee! The coeds you saw must have been real beauties.

A. "I have seen better faces in my time."

Q. Do you mean to say you were looking at their faces?

A. "Let me take you a button-hole lower."

Q. What advice would you give to streakers?

A. "Make haste; the better foot before. Not stepping o'er the bounds of modesty. Have more than thou showest."

Q. And what advice would you give spectators.

A. "Let every eye negotiate for itself."

Q. Would you consider streaking yourself?

A. "My dismal scene I needs must act alone."

Q. How should college authorities deal with streakers?

A. "Hang a calf's-skin on those recent limbs."

Q. Thank you, Mr. Shakespeare.

CONTENTMENT — It was just that kind of day—rain. There were no visitors at San Francisco's Fleishhacker Zoo, and what else was there for 2,300-pound hippo Puddles II to do but catch a little shuteye, resting his dainty chin and jowls on the edge of his pool.

Disposal fee hiked in S.D.

SAN DIMAS — The City Council has granted a 20 cent rate increase to the San Dimas Disposal Co. for trash service pickup to single family homes and a 10 cent increase to multiple units.

Present rates are $2.50 and $1.50 respectively for monthly service. The firm's last rate increase was granted in 1971.

The new rates will be effective April 1.

In a letter to the council, Ed East, president of the firm, said expenses have increased "across the board" since the inception of the firm's contract with the city in 1969. He listed the increases in postage, diesel fuel, dump fees and wages as the reasons for the rate increase.

Terrorists being trained in Australia?

SYDNEY (UPI) — Federal police said Tuesday they are investigating the reported training of terrorists in Australia for guerilla activities in Europe and Israel.

Acting Commonwealth Police Commisioner John Harper said officers have been investigating the alleged activities of 14 guerillas in underwater sabotage training around the Great Barrier Reef on Australia's northeastern coast.

All Australian international airports have been put on full alert in a bid to capture the guerillas, unofficially identified as Japanese members of the extreme left wing Unified Red Army.

Officials at British harbors and airports have been alerted to the reports that the guerillas were heading for Europe.

"Our information is that 14 Palestinians have been specially trained in Australian waters in the conduct of subagua attacks on navy ships," a police officer said.

Police at Heathrow airport have been told to "maintain all vigilance," police said.

Pharmacy drugs stolen

ONTARIO — A burglar punched a hole in the roof of the Hungtington Pharmacy Tuesday night at 537 N. Euclid Ave. and stole more than 3,000 barbituate tablets and other drugs, according to Ontario police.

Police said the burglar gained entrace to the pharmacy by first climbing on top of a telephone booth then crossing a canopy to the roof where he used an axe or saw to cut a 12 by 14 inch hole. The burglar tied a 50-foot garden hose around a roof air conditioner and lowered himself into the pharmacy area of the building, police said.

The burglar took 3,000 pentobarbital and secobarbital tablets, in five or six milky white bottles.

Police were tipped off to the burglary when the thief tripped a silent alarm as he left the store through a rear door.

Hearing in shooting death today

ONTARIO — A preliminary hearing for Thomas Keith Stinson, 24, of 434 S. Cypress St., accused of shooting his 24-year-old roommate to death in their Ontario home Friday night, is scheduled for today in West Valley Municipal Court.

Stinson, according to Ontario police, was arrested at the Cypress Street address late Friday night after his roommate Marvin Don Hermesch, 24, was found dead in the front yard. Hermesch, according to police, had been shot at least 10 times by two different small caliber handguns.

Police said they believe the suspect shot Stinson following a quarrel at a party earlier Friday night. Detective John Donaldson said other persons possibly witnessing the shooting have been reluctant to discuss the case.

Stinson was arraigned before West Valley Muncipal Court Judge Kenneth Ziebarth Tuesday.

Coroner's officials earlier reported they believed the victim and suspect in the crime were memebers of the "Righteous Ones" motorcycle club as well as other persons possibly attending the party.

However, Dave Morgan, president of the "Rightgeous Ones" said that Hermesch was a member of the motorcycle club and Stinson was not. No other members of the motorcycle club lived in the house.

Baptist convention hears Claremont man

HOUSTON — Harvey Seifert, a professor at the School of Theology at Claremont, speaking here at a Southern Baptist convention, said the major nutritional problem for two-thirds of the world's population is hunger while the biggest problem of Americans is obesity.

The Baptist theologian said Tuesday that humanity has grown apathetic to inequality and insensitive to "those who cry for freedom."

Seifert told the convention's Seminar on the Economic Crisis that the indifference in the world community to the needs of humanity is a "rebellion against God.

"It blocks our growth and at the same time destroys the full possibility of our social life together," he said.

Seifert said that Biblical teachings "make it plain that priority is to be given to the needs of the poor."

To emphasize his contention, Seifert said most of the world's population live in underdeveloped countries and that they are starving. In contrast, he said Americans have expanded the waistline while growing calloused to the needs of the poor.

Two freed in stabbing; 3rd still held

CUCAMONGA — Two of three men arrested by sheriff's deputies on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon stemming from stabbing March 17 at 8159 Grove Ave. have been released without charge.

While the charges were dropped against Allen Paul Nieman, 26, and Michael Aichlmayr, 20, of West Covina, Stephen Denny, 24, of 8159 Grove Ave., Cucamonga, was arraigned on the charge in the Cucamonga Justice Court last week. Denny is scheduled to appear in the justice court April 8 for preliminary hearing.

Still out on bail in the case, with no complaint filed as yet, are William Coby Jr., 25, and Robert F. Kuester, 21, of Upland.

Deputies allege that several suspects attacked and stabbed Jose Gilbert Valdez, 24, of Fontana, in the parking lot of the Club 66 on March 17. Valdez claimed that the suspects threw a beer bottle at his car just before the altercation, while one of the suspects has claimed that Valdez threw a bottle at their vehicle.

BLINDNESS NO HANDICAP — Bonnie Owens bowls with classmates despite being blind since birth.

Sightless girl bowler not up a blind alley

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Bonnie Owens, 19, recently bowled a high game of 106, up from an average of 65. It may not seem like much to brag about to most people, but to Bonnie, who has been blind since birth, it's quite an achievement.

Bonnie, 19, relies on her hearing to let her know approximately how well she is bowling.

"I can tell when the ball goes in the gutter, or if I only hit one pin, but after that it gets more difficult. When I hit eight or more pins, I can't tell at all," she said.

The excitement of those around her lets her know when she's made a strike though, she said.

Bonnie is enrolled in a regular bowling class at Brigham Young University.

"I had to take a physical ed class, and since I'd bowled five or six times before, I thought it would be fun to learn more," said the freshman student, who stands only 4 feet, 10 inches.

With an average game of 65, Bonnie feels she's made progress since class began in January.

"I had some really bad days, when I'd only make 30, and those were kind of discouraging," said Bonnie, a family relations major from Blythe, Calif. "My real problem now though is the tendency for my ball to go left."

To help correct this problem, Bonnie uses a special railing placed along the lane. "All this does is keep me straight. If I even turn my foot, I'd go crooked. I just keep my hand on the rail for the first couple of steps," she said.

Bonnie's instructor, Hank Kloepfer, is pleased with her progress. "She would be an average bowler for a normal individual, for her size and lack of sight, I would say she is an exceptional bowler."

"The first few days of class, all her balls were going in the gutter, but she kept at it, and now she is doing really well."

Idea borrowed from the military

Latex 'smart bomb' could aid in fight against cancer

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) — Borrowing an idea from the military, a California biochemist is attempting to develop a microscopic "smart bomb" made of latex to attack cancer cells in the human body.

Dr. William J. Dreyer, professor of biology at the California Institute of Technology, said the unusual approach in the war against cancer appears to offer "very great promise for the future." But he emphasized it is far from the reality of today.

Dreyer said in a report released today at a science writers seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society that the spheres, as small as one three millionth of an inch in diameter, are coated with antibodies of the immune system which will seek out and attach to specific cells in the blood stream.

The technique could, in effect, become an artificial immune system to improve the natural defenses of the body against cancer and other diseases.

The "smartness" of the spheres has been proven in test tube experiments, Dreyer said. Red blood cells with known antigens, substances which react with specific antibodies, were sought out by the antibody-coated spheres in a solution with untreated cells.

Dreyer said the idea is such spheres could carry lethal drugs or radioactive elements to seek out and kill a cancer cell or other unwanted cell.

Although the concept of such spheres has been tested, Dreyer noted that they are far from being used in humans. He pointed out that such particles could not be injected into the bloodstream until they are proven compatible with blood.

"At this time, only preliminary studies have been completed in order to prove the general feasibility of this approach," he said.

In addition, to attacking the cancer cells, he said his team is also excited about the possibility of using such spheres to carry fluorescent tags to the surfaces of cancer cells for early cancer detection purposes.

Another use of the immune system with more immediate applications was discussed in a report Tuesday by Dr. Ray Powles, director of clinical immunotherapy units at two hospitals in London and Surrey, England.

He reported that just-completed tests have shown the lives of adult patients suffering from acute myelogenous leukemia can be prolonged for many months or at least, by stimulating their immune defenses with injections of killed leukemia cells and an antituberculosis vaccine called BCG.

He gave 32 adults this experimental therapy in conjunction with standard chemical therapy. Another 28 patients received chemical treatment alone.

Of those receiving the combination treatment, 14 patients are still alive, 10 of whom have lived more than one year since beginning treatment, four for two years and two for three. Only four of the patients receiving the chemical treatment alone are still alive, and the average survival time of those who have since died was 10 months, compared to 18 for those on the immune therapy.

"The results have clearly shown that immunotherapy prolongs both remission length and survival," he said.

Mother Nature strikes back at eastern U.S.

By United Press International

A cold wave that tumbled spring temperatures in the Midwest moved east to the Atlantic Coast today.

Freezing weather was reported from Maine to as far south as the Southern Appalachians, the Tennessee Valley and southern Arkansas. Snows were forecast for northern Minnesota through the upper Great Lakes and for Central and Northern Illinois.

It all goes to prove it's not nice to fool Mother Nature.

Talk of an early spring following a mild winter ended during the weekend.

Mother Nature struck back— dropping the temperature to 33 below zero in Roseau, Minn., setting a cold mark for late March in Chicago, icing highways in Texas, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, and piling up as much as seven inches of snow from central Missouri through Ohio, western Pennsylvania, upper New York state and New England.

The Chicago reading of 5 above broke a 100-year record and came the same month that the themometer climbed to 80 for a pre-spring warm weather mark on March 3.

The cold wave set record lows in dozens of midwest communities and threatened fruit trees in Indiana and Illinois, where the earlier mild temperatures had started trees to bud. Horticulturist J. Bon Harline of Anna, Ill., said the freeze may have wiped out the entire commercial peach crop in the Midwest.

An ice storm left hazardous roads over a broad area of north, west and central Texas. At least four highway deaths were attributed to stormrelated accidents. Two of the victims, Melvin L. and Linda Moyers died when their trailer truck hit ice at the Brazos River Bridge, skidded into another truck and exploded.

St. Louis and Cleveland, Ohio, had seven-inch snowfalls. A 12-car pile-up was reported on the icy South Expressway in Akron, Ohio.

In Ohio, new lows included one degree at Toledo, 4 at Dayton, 8 at Mansfield and 11 at Cincinnati.

Lionized in 'Walking Tall'

Pusser's legacy: fearful silence

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Try to get hold if it and you're likely to end up with a fistful of smoke.

The story surrounding Buford Pusser, one-time sheriff of McNairy County, Tennessee, currently lionized in the movie "Walking Tall," is riddled with controversy and confusion. The only certainty is that the movie has grossed $30 million since its release last March and Buford Pusser is becoming legendary — possibly for the wrong reasons.

Pusser spent six violent years as sheriff during the 1960s patrolling the state line between Tennessee and Mississippi. The prostitution, gambling and illegal whiskey which were flourishing there brought him into collision with members of the "syndicate" and he matched them blow for blow, suffering stabbings, shootings and the loss of his wife in an ambush.

Still, the question remains: is Pusser really the heroic one-man blitz against crime the press agents for "Walking Tall" are packaging, or is he a violence-loving brute who enforced the law as he saw fit — who, even now has a goodly number of the people down home intimidated?

"I was in Vietnam for two years and I encountered more fear in McNairy County than I did there. It's the first time in my life I had to go outside a town to get affidavits signed."

So says Cammy Wilson, a reporter for the Dayton Daily News who spent several weeks in McNairy County researching a story on Pusser.

"He's done as much harm as the people he fought in many cases," states one Tennessee newsman who backed away from attribution. He was not alone. Several people interviewed by telephone said they were afraid to talk about Pusser on the record. Again and again, McNairy county residents used the word "suspicious" to describe circumstances surrounding several of Pusser's exploits. But when queried about being quoted, they responded firmly: "No Ma'am. In no way."

Pusser, at six-feet-six and 250 pounds, is colossal. After

BUFORD PUSSER: A question remains.

15 plastic surgery operations, he's wired and tacked together, but he's still a "mean old husky guy," as one acquaintance puts it.

Immaculate and disarmingly soft-spoken, Pusser understandably prefers the movie version of his exploits, although a disclaimer is the film indicates the plot was "suggested" by certain actions in his life. He grants events have been "glamorized," but he resents being questioned about the disparities between "Walking Tall," and "The Twelfth of August," his biography written by W. R. Morris.

One central incident bears airing.

In the book's account of the hickory-stick episode which has carried him to fame, Pusser is happily ensconced in Chicago with a new bride, a job at the Union Bag Company, and a weekend agenda of wrestling bouts. He and two friends are suddenly extradicted to Mississippi on charges of armed robbery and assault brought by the owner of a state line club where, some time earlier, Pusser had been cheated at dice and beaten to the tune of 192 stitches. Pusser stews about being framed, pleads innocent, and is acquitted.

In "Walking Tall," Pusser, home from Chicago with his family, reluctantly visits one of the cheap clubs that have sprung up in the area since he left, aids a friend being cheated, and is beaten severely. When the sheriff refuses to act, Pusser later returns with his hickory stick and fractures bones. The jury acquits him.

Nowadays, Pusser verifies the book's version, then goes on to admit that he and his friends lied to the jury in Mississippi under cover of a pre-arranged alibi in Chicago.

In her story for the Dayton Daily News, Cammy Wilson alleges Pusser extorted payoffs from state-line joint owners, quotes his step-daughter who describes Pusser as "a man to be afraid of," and discredits the legitimacy of "Walking Tall."

Pusser claims the reporter was paid off. "Her mother was about to lose her home in Mississippi," he says. "Cammy was contacted by these people involved in the crime now on the state line and she stayed some weeks to do the story. Then she came up with the $1,500 payment for the house. Now you tell me: is a paper in Dayton, Ohio, going to send someone 500 miles to write a story and pay her salary all that time?"

Yes, replies James Dygert, Wilson's city editor. "The movie was playing in Dayton at that time (October 1973) and we knew Cammy was from Mississippi, so we assigned her to go down and do the story. She was on salary."

In a feature in The Nashville Tennessean, Pusser is depicted signing copies of "The Twelfth of August." At first mention of the book, however, he dismisses it with a wave of his hand. "There's not a bit of truth to it," he says. "The book was written without my permission. They were trying to use me. I have never read the book." Pressed on the point, he concedes, "I skimmed it."

He claims the author never interviewed him, that the dates are often wrong and that, for one small thing, he doesn't cuss the way they say he did.

"Before the book was ever published, Buford made a special trip to read it — and he did, page by page," author Morris says hotly.

"There were lots of things in the book he didn't like but he did endorse it as his official biography, especially when the movie came out. Buford's angry with me because he says I'm destroying his movie image. I've been getting calls from all over because the movie and the book are so different and he gets angry when he finds out what I'm telling people."

Author and subject are currently embroiled in a royalty dispute over the book, and Morris is dispatching press releases touting a new book, "The Real Buford Pusser," which reportedly will reflect "the type of man Buford Pusser actually is . . . how McNairy citizens feel about him."

It's a tough part of the country, McNairy County, where juries, they say, don't bring in many murder convictions because they tend to empathize with the accused. Pusser, involved in two killings as sheriff, was adjudged by grand juries to have acted in self-defense.

In the county, witnesses are more difficult to find than the holy grail. Pusser's detractors, including W. R. Morris, say there were never any witnesses to the run-ins he had. The "niceties" of the law are often considered luxuries, according to some local residents. Pusser himself says with a hint of a smile: "I'm sure everything I did wasn't right within the law. Of course, I think the law is based on good common horse sense."

Vanishing underwear traced to cat burglars

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Park rangers are explaining to guests at the Ahwahnee Hotel these days that the articles, usually underwear, which vanish from their rooms are taken by "cat burglars"—ringtailed cat burglars.

The ringtails look something like a cross between a squirrel and a raccoon, and this, it seems, is the height of the ringtail mating season.

In the grip of romance the animals feel compelled to build nests. In their passion to complete the ringtail equivalent of a rose-covered cottage, they will filch anything that appears to be suitable nest lining.

That explains, the rangers said, the thefts including one nylon stocking and a man's set of undershirt and shorts. A man's athletic supporter also disappeared, but apparently fell short of the ringtails' building code requirements, because it was abandoned outside the hotel.

The rangers also have a warning for future guests at the hotel. Sometimes, when the mating season is over and the nests have served their purpose, the ringtails conscientiously bring back their purloined goods, leaving ragged undergarments in the rooms to mystify the subsequent occupants.

Rattles & straws

Novel presents novel presence

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

My legion of friends and both my readers will be saddened to learn that my latest novel has been turned down by the publishers. It's a blow to my ego, of course — the 231st blow since I started mailing out the manuscript — but time wounds all heels. When you've been hit 230 times, how much does the 231st hurt? But there — didn't mean to make you cry. Come on — Daddy kiss and make it all well.

My novel, "Girl of the Limberlost," revolves about a crippled ballet dancer. See, she's in love with this young violinist who is going blind, but they have some great scenes together up on the rooftop tenement in Brooklyn — she hobbles after him on her crutches to keep him from walking off the fire escape. There isn't a dry seat in the house!

Well, the young musician loses his job at this topless nightclub where he works and he is pretty sad when he comes home. Here he learns that his mother has come down with consumption and the family is being evicted for back rent. (I don't know why I'm telling you all this — promise you won't steal the plot?)

So when all the family's beds and chairs and junk are dumped out on the sidewalk (I forgot to say it is raining) the young man throws himself sobbing on the mattress and beding and suddenly — his hand feels the violin under his grasp. The girl has retrieved it, brace and all and thrust it into his sensitive fingers. With a smile that lights up Flatbush Avenue he springs to his feet and begins to play. And how he plays! (Excuse me a moment I'm getting all choked up.)

A crowd gathers. (In Brooklyn they'll take anything free even Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto.) One of the passersby who pauses to listen is— you guessed it — Yehudi Menuhin! Is that a grabber? (I'll have to clear with him of course.) Chapter 128 opens in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center where Menuhin's protege slim and elegant in tie and tails after the eye operation that restored his sight is preparing to make his professional debut while backstage sheriff's deputies are dragging off some little groupie in a wheelchair.

Well — I guess I don't have to tell the whole plot do I? Or did I?

The rejection letter from my latest non-publisher objected because there was not enough sex and violence to make a popular novel.

"There were hardly any perverts" he complained. "The mutilation scene was definitely toned down. There was no hard porno until Chapter III. How long can our readers wait?

"Thank you for thinking of De Sade Publishers. Rejection does not necessarily signify lack of merit. Good luck in placing your book elsewhere. Four members of our editorial staff read the manuscript and no one threw up. I'm afraid it is just not commercial."

I can't believe that no one threw up!

Progress slow on analyzing moon rocks

HOUSTON (UPI) — It's been nearly five years since man went to the moon and began picking up rocks in hopes of finding clues to the origin of the universe.

With 840 pounds of the moon now on earth by way of the daring Apollo missions, man has yet to make much of a dent in examining the rock pile. Geochemist Robin Brett estimates only about 5 per cent of the rocks have been analyzed.

"Before Apollo 11 (the first moon landing) there were people saying, 'Give me a piece of the moon and I'll tell you the story of the solar system,'" Brett said. "In five years, we have come a long way but people are still going to be working on this in 10 years time."

The Johnson Space Center scientist made his remarks Sunday at the close of the 5th annual Lunar Rock Conference, which attracted more than 500 scientists studying lunar samples in labs throughout the world, one reason for the slow analysis.

"The amount of ground we have covered in these five years—what we know about the moon, its evolution, development and internal structure—is staggering," Brett said, "when compared to how long it took to learn equivalent things about the earth."

Brett said a notion that the moon was formed baiscally from two types of materials—one inside and the other on the outside or crust-was challenged seriously for the first time in the conference.

"More and more people are challenging this and suggesting that the moon, like the earth, was formed from a single composition," he said.

Funny business

Tax collector to retire soon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Harold J. Ostly, county treasurer and tax collector, announced Tuesday he will retire March 31, ending 38 years in government service.

Ostly, 62, recently had a leg amputated. He has held his present post for 13 years. Supervisor Pete Schabarum praised his "long and very distinguished career."

St. Louis-Mexico City rail service studied

SAN ANTONIO, Tex (UPI) — By summer, passenger trains may run from St. Louis all the way to Mexico City, eliminating the need to change trains at the Mexican border.

National Railways of Mexico offered to furnish the sleeper cars and anything else necessary to restore international passenger service without the border change.

But Stanley Campbell' vice president of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, said during a weekend meeting with Mexican rail officials that many details remained to be decided.

He hopes, however, that by June 1, passenger trains may run at least three times weekly from St. Louis to Mexico City, eliminating the need to change trains at Laredo, Tex., or Nuevo Laredo across the Rio Grande in Mexico.

Amtrak, the U.S. train service, has an equipment shortage. The Mexican rails said they would furnish the necessary number of roomette and bedroom cars for either weekly, tri-weekly or daily service, Campbell said.

Mexican officials met with San Antonio chamber officers on a thrice weekly package plan. It would allow passengers on sleeper cars to spend one day in Nuevo Laredo, then reboard the following morning for Mexico City.

Mexican representatives agreed in the San Antonio meetings that passengers could undergo on-board customs inspections. They would need to detrain at the crossing on the northbound trip, however.

Campbell said Amtrak needs to "find" 45 minutes in its southbound schedule from St. Louis to Texarkana, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and Laredo, to merge with Mexican schedules.

The Mexican officials have already agreed to save 45 minutes south of the border, he said Saturday.

The Amtrak time adjustment would permit travelers to detrain in Laredo and taxi across the border to catch the Aztec Eagle, if they elected the two-train option under study.

Telephone conferences between Amtrak, San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and Mexican authorities should serve to conclude the arrangements for restored through-train service, Campbell said.

Neighborhood decisions on recreation plans proposed

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — If approval comes, a new concept in the city-schools joint recreation program will be introduced this year that could eventually have residents, not officials, largely determine what recreational programs are best-suited and available to their neighborhoods.

The concept was explained by Parks and Recreation Director Jack Hoxsey and City Recreation Supt. Donald Radford at a joint meeting Tuesday afternoon of the school board and City Council.

Called the "community schools" concept, it is included in a proposed joint recreation budget of $509,668 for 1974-75.

Hoxsey emphasized that the budget presently is in request form only and has yet to be reviewed and approved by the school board and the council.

The community schools concept is one of 19 sub-programs included in the recreation "program" budget and would cost $79,300 during the first fiscal year, or initial implementation stage.

But once started, and if successful, it could become the overriding concept for all activities in the recreational program.

The diversification within the overall program could be such that there actually could be not one but several distinct recreation programs, each with its own identity and each shaped according to the consensus of neighborhood residents, said Radford.

The concept would divide the existing program into possibly six geographical areas, with a junior high school or other place becoming the "community center" or nucleus, for each.

At each of these centers, residents from the surrounding neighborhoods through advisory committees would put together their recreational programs. Final budget considerations would be up to city and school officials.

"The community schools program is intended to provide a comprehensive and varied program of public recreation activities, services, and resources for our citizens at all age levels, from preschool through senior citizens," the proposal reads.

"The total family unit would be considered in the planning of each of these programs."

Hoxsey said the concept would mean the concentration of recreation supervisory personnel in fewer locations.

For the concept to work, said Radford, it will take "equal commitment" by the school board and council and wider participation by the public than has been the case in the past.

Radford said the concept originated in Flint, Mich., and after its success there, has been spreading fast to other parts of the country, including the Hacienda-La Puente area.

The budget proposal as it now stands would mean a cost to the school district of $180,966 for a 12-month period. This compares to the 1973-74 allocation of $156,000 for a nine-month period. The district last year because of financial problems temporarily dropped out of the joint program.

The district's share of the costs would amount to 34 per cent and city government would pay for the remainder. The sharing formula in the past has been about one-third, two-thirds.

If the budget is approved as proposed, city government's share of the costs would be $328,702.

Circus will make stop here Sunday for 2 performances

POMONA — The Pomona Breakfast Optimist Club is bringing the De Wayne Bros. Circus to town for two performances Sunday.

The big top will go up on the old heliport at Commercial Street and Park Avenue. Performances will be given at 2 and 4 p.m.

Tickets will be $1 for children and 50 cents for adults. Proceeds will benefit youth activities and projects of the Pomona Breakfast Optimist Club.

De Wayne Bros. Circus, which is headquartered in North Hollywood, features clowns, disciplined canines, jugglers, aerialists, trampoline performers and animals galore.

The circus is the realization of a lifetime dream of owner Ted De Wayne, whose motto is "as long as there is a child there will always be a circus."

As head of one of the greatest acrobatics troupes in the circus world, De-Wayne looked forward to the day when he could have his own circus, one that followed the true old-fashioned American tradition.

He started with a few animals, trucks and equipment. He has enlarged each year until now the De Wayne Bros. Circus is one of the largest tented circuses touring.

Today De Wayne supervises the circus and also performs.

Proposal by pet agency advances to City Council

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

POMONA — The humane treatment of animals won a small victory here Wednesday night.

Acting at the request of the Pomona Valley Humane Society, the Pomona Planning Commission recommended Roselawn Avenue be renamed to Humane Way. The society's office faces on Roselawn.

The proposal, however, must yet go before the City Council to become official. The section involved extends from Mission Boulevard to Valley Boulevard. A small segment between Pomona Boulevard and the Union Pacific railroad tracks is not involved.

Some objection to the name change was raised by an attorney representing the General Dynamics Corp., which owns property fronting on Roselawn and also has an option to obtain additional city property at Roselawn and Mission Boulevard.

"The identification of any public street with a name distinct to one of the occupants may diminish the other land owners," said Donald Belke.

While noting General Dynamics doesn't at present have a "door way" on Roselawn, Belke said "we do think of future development for that property. And we believe this name would have a future negative affect."

Belke said the firm would have no objection to a more "neutral name" for the street.

The commission also received a letter from R. E. Sutherland, director of industrial relations for General Dynamics, which stated Humane Way has a limited application to the interests of one property owner to the exclusion of the others for whom the name would not be appropriate for address identification purposes.

"General Dynamics strongly supports the fine efforts of the humane society and is not opposed to a street name change of less restrictive application. However, in that no name other than Humane Way has been proposed, we recommend that the street remain as Roselawn Avenue," wrote Sutherland.

Another letter, this one supporting the name change, was received from Bruce Richards, executive director of the humane society.

"For almost 25 years, the humane society has faithfully served the City of Pomona. We have come a long way since 1949 in updating our animal welfare services and community animal-orientated programs," he wrote.

"In requesting the renaming of our street address, we are looking at 500 Humane Way, an address that will reflect favorably upon our purpose as long as we exist at this address."

During a public hearing, the name request got unexpected support from John Gerard Guerin, a USC student attending the commission meeting on an urban studies class assignment.

"Humane is not a name which refers specifically to the society for animals, but also to bring care and good to others.

"In this connotation, there should be no objection to this name. General Dynamics is a major employer in Pomona and it may take good advantage of this in terms of the human relations approach."

In voting for approval, planners noted that no private businesses would receive any commercial gains.

A matter of conscience

Pitzer coed vying for U.S. 'College Girl' title

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Pitzer College coed Devon Lane Bates eschews makeup, wears her brown hair in a simple, short style and smiles as softly as she speaks. She's impressively articulate, intelligent and socially aware.

She isn't your average beauty contest entrant, but then she isn't entered in your average beauty contest either.

Miss Bates, a 20-year-old from Connecticut who's majoring in environmental design and social change, recently won the right to represent California in the first annual "College Girl of the Year" competition at the National Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D.C.

It's hardly a beauty contest. The young women finalists were selected on the basis of written answers to 20 questions covering their personal interests, hobbies and concerns.

In Washington, they'll be quizzed by a panel of judges on their scholastic abilities, ingenuity, community consciousness, character, personality and poise.

Miss Bates entered the contest as an exercise in consciousness raising. She hopes, by her own example, to encourage other contestants to be real, not "objects" or "cheesecake."

If she is chosen "College Girl of the Year," she also stands to collect $2,500 in cash, a new car and another $2,500 for the college. She will earmark the college's share for Pitzer's Community Resources Committee to promote cultural activities at the school.

Miss Bates, now a junior, will probably use some of the money to help finance a fall trip to Africa where she plans to study the way simpler societies utilize their environment. The study will be useful in her later career as an urban planner working in Third World countries.

The final ceremonies of the competition end April 5. They will be shown April 11 over ABC-TV's "Wide World of Entertainment."

Center for elderly to open in April; 3 services offered

POMONA — Churchman's Pomona Center, a facility to provide care for the elderly, will have its grand opening April 15 at 250 W. Artesia St.

Churchman's Center offers three separate but interrelated services at one location for different needs of the elderly.

Senior citizens who want the companionship offered in a community of others with similar interests and who no longer wish to cook and clean for themselves will be offered room and board at the center.

Hospital care will be provided in the skilled-nursing section. A physical therapy room and pool are being completed for use by the elderly patients.

The third service provides intermediate care, combining home-like living opportunities with the amount of care needed by convalescing patients.

According to Paul Swanson, administrator of Churchman's changing needs of elderly can be met at the center without the trauma of a major move from one facility to another.

Names of potential residents are being accepted at the center. Those interested should call 623-3018 for further information.

Teacher bargaining plan opposed

POMONA — The California School Boards Association has voted unanimously to maintain its opposition to collective bargaining for school teachers, according to Pomona school board member Don Donnelly, a member of the association's Delegate Assembly.

Voting took place last week at an assembly meeting in Sacramento.

Donnelly said the association believes it is absolutely essential in the interest of public participation in local schools that passage of a hard-line collective bargaining law be opposed.

"The Delegate Assembly further agreed that improvement in the Winton Act, the existing employer-employe relations law, is desirable from the standpoint of improving the management effectiveness of public schools," said Donnelly.

The assembly examined legislation proposed by Sen. Albert Rodda, which Donnelly said, contains provisions the association can support.

"The bill improves the fact-finding process by the selection of a third-party neutral chairman of a three-person fact-finding team," he explained.

While in Sacramento, Donnelly met with Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, D-20th Dist., and Assemblyman Joseph B. Montoya, D-50th Dist., to discuss local school concerns.

Streakers' driver loses seat on X-rated film jury

WEST COVINA — A person who aids streakers in their endeavors may not make the most impartial juror in a case involving an X-rated movie, according to a Citrus Municipal Court judge.

With that inference Judge Sam Cianchetti removed Jeff Matzke Wednesday from the jury panel that was hearing evidence on whether "Deep Throat", now playing in a Rowland Heights theater, was obscene.

The judge acted after Covina Police revealed that Matzke drove the getaway car for three young men who dashed through a restaurant here last Sunday, wearing only white hats.

Opinion

Power play may prove costly

Americans are pretty much reconciled to the fact that if they want energy and a decent environment, too, they are going to have to pay for them.

Strip mining now yields more than half the nation's total annual output of coal, and will be called upon to yield more in the future. But nobody expects the coal industry to foot the entire bill — or most of it or even any of it — for the expensive and difficult reclamation of strip-mined land, or for devising some method of "cleansing" high sulfur content coal. The costs must ultimately be borne by the consumer.

The rationale behind the industry's traditional resistance to strip-mining laws — that they would put coal at a disadvantage in the marketplace — no longer holds today, if it ever did hold. America's demand not just for energy but the chemical derivatives of fossil fuels is going nowhere but up, and no one resource alone can meet it.

Yet the coal industry, allied with electrical power companies, continues to fight the bad fight, on the state level and on the national level, against any and every threat to its right to go on in, rip out the coal and leave.

Members of the House Interior Committee are reportedly under intense pressure from coal and power lobbyists to kill or gut a strong federal strip mine control bill. The measure narrowly escaped defeat in the committee last month. (The Senate is apparently beyond hope, having previously passed a smiliar bill by a large majority.)

This is shortsightedness in the extreme on the part of the coal and utility people. It is their environment as much as anyone else's, and what the nation fails to do today to protect its natural heritage will exact a far greater price tomorrow from their children, and everyone else's children, than mere money can pay for.

Singing neglected

It's said that the true test of an American is that he can't sing the second verse of the Star Spangled Banner. That may have to be revised in the light of a survey conducted by the National Assessment of Educational Progresss in Denver, which suggests that the typical American can't sing — period.

In a random sampling of people between the ages of 9 and 35, it was found that fewer than 15 per cent could sight-read the simplest line of music; less than half were able to sing a simple round; only 70 per cent of adults were able to sing "America," and then only with taped accompaniment; and only 10 per cent could repeat a simple melodic phrase.

While about 25 per cent of those surveyed professed to play an instrument, only about 15 per cent were willing to prove it, and only two-thirds of those gave an acceptable performance.

Nevertheless, the report on the survey concludes that "the majority of Americans do enjoy listening to music and can perform music in a rudimentary way."

Windmill returns

Suddenly people are taking windmills seriously as a way to relieve pressure on fuels such as oil and coal. The federal government will pour over $1 million into windmill research during fiscal 1974, according to The Wall Street Journal, and at least 5 American universities have also embarked upon research programs. It has been said that windmills, grouped to form power stations, could provide an important portion of U.S. energy needs.

The big question is what to do when the wind stops blowing. One ingenious citizen has suggested that the windmills be situated astride the lawn on Capitol Hill. "The constant flow of hot air," he remarks, "emanating from the politicians and bureaucrats on how to solve the energy shortage will assure that the windmills never stop." Imagine the consternation of the oil-producing nations as our supply of electricity grew infinitely larger with every passing day! Soon they would beg us to take their oil at any price. The answer to the energy crisis is clear. If we will make use of one of our most abundant natural resources — long-winded politicians — the U.S. can be well on the road to energy self-sufficiency again.

If we just had gas

One of the most amazing things about the gasoline crisis is the way the automobile industry has responded to it.

Despite the penalty of gas-consuming anti-pollution equipment, there's scarcely a new model that is not racking up fantastic mileage — according to the manufacturers' advertising, anyway. Even big, standard sedans are getting 18, 19, 20 or more miles per gallon, and the little cars are out of sight.

Whether the controlled testing that achieves these results has any relation to the way people drive in the real world is another matter. But it's certainly a testimonial to the ingenuity of the industry.

Vietnam vets: Forgotten Americans

WASHINGTON — They called it peace with honor and said our men would come home on their feet, not on their knees. Just a year ago this week, the last combat troops were withdrawn. Now thousands of veterans find they are flat on their faces.

Vietnam was a war with no glory and, for the men who fought there, no heroes. Many of the young soldiers who risked their lives in the rain forests and rice paddies of Southeast Asia remain alienated from the society that sent them to a war most Americans neither wanted nor like to remember.

The memories are painful and the process of forgetting has been harsh on the men who came back from Vietnam. The regrettable result: The Vietnam veteran has become today's forgotten American.

He came home to a cold welcome. He found his peers had taken the available jobs, his elders regarded him with suspicion and his government was interested only in cutting veterans benefits.

The educational benefits of the GI Bill, which helped two generations of vets complete their schooling, are now laughably inadequate. Even these small benefits get entangled in the bureaucratic red tape, which snarls the Veterans Administration. Scores of former servicemen have complained to us that their college checks arrive too late or not at all.

GI loans for home purchases, which gave birth to clusters of small but adequate suburban residences across the nation, are virtually worthless in today's inflated real estate market.

Despite half-hearted efforts by the government, many veterans have found they cannot find decent jobs. In hard purchasing power, according to the VA's own private calculations, a single Vietnam vet buys $203 less with his government check than did his father after World War II. Married vets are even worse off.

Disabled veterans tell us they don't receive adequate treatment, training or compensation.

But the darkest cloud hanging over the Vietnam vet is the drug problem. An internal government memo reports that the American public "assumes that all Vietnam era veterans have abused drugs and this makes them more skeptical when it comes to hiring the younger veteran."

There's no denying many GIs came to rely on drugs in Vietnam, some to relieve the pain of wounds, others just to escape the cruel realities of war. The treatment centers promised by the Pentagon have fallen woefully short. They aren't even open to men who received "less than honorable" discharges, although these men often are the ones who most need treatment.

Facing a hostile world that offers them insufficient benefits and few opportunities, some vets have fallen back on their chemical crutches.

Many veterans complain that President Nixon behaved as if the only men who served in Vietnam were the 600 POWs. While he was hosting them in a tent on the White House grounds, he gutted programs that would help the soldiers who didn't get captured.

He slashed disability compensation for severely disabled vets, opposed GI educational increases as "excessive and inflationary," impounded funds voted by Congress to help colleges enroll vets, cut funds for a "mandatory job listing" program intended to give vets first crack at over a million jobs, and vetoed special burial and health benefits for veterans.

In one celebrated case, the President's budget managers tried to save money by cutting off funds for cooling veterans hospitals in the summer. The Senate responded with a vote to cut off the air conditioning at the Office of Management and Budget. The hospital cooling systems were hastily restored.

The President paid brief attention to the veterans in 1972 when he was running for re-election. The "Veterans Mobile Outreach" program, for instance, sent vans to assist veterans three months before the election. The scheduling and publicity were handled, not by the VA, but by the President's campaign committee. Veterans have charged that the vans visited areas where the President needed votes, not where veterans needed assistance.

But perhaps the biggest obstacle for the returning veterans is the Vietnam War itself. America hasn't yet recovered from the war. The nation was torn apart, and the wounds are deep and slow in healing.

Professional counseling was desperately needed, but seldom provided, for those returning from combat to a country in the midst of rapid social change. The forlorn veteran, suddenly shorn of his uniform and confronted with the conflicts of a nation in turmoil, had nowhere to turn.

It is odd that a country, which won't forgive those who refused to serve in Vietnam, also refuses to reward those who did their duty. But the veteran is a living symbol of that war, a reminder to his fellow Americans of a pain they would rather forget.

So in a sense, the forgotten veteran has become the last victim of the Vietnam War.

FOOTNOTE: Dozens of Massachusetts vets are planning to come to Washington on March 29 to sell apples on street corners. "Project Apple" is patterned after the post-World War I action of veterans.

PAUL HARVEY

This is no time for chickens!

My crystal ball is all fuzzy and blurry, but the haze is agitated, swirling. Whatever is in your future is sure going to be exciting!

There's insecurity in your future. This is no time for "chickens." The timid who prefer the status to remain quietly quo are in for a bumpy ride.

But for the adventuresome, what a time to be alive! And isn't this what gives life to our lives? The exciting uncertainties?

It isn't the wind in your face that makes skiing worth climbing the mountain. You can get that from a fan in front of the refrigerator. It's the "danger."

The golf course you call the "sporting course" is the one with the most spectacular multiplicity of hazards. A golf course that's all fairway you won't play.

Politicians, using the security slogan for vote bait, convinced many Americans that being fed, sheltered and comfortable is life's highest purpose. Man, we can get those things in any prison!

So we flock to the game tables, the lottery or the stock market hungry for a chance to take a chance. And the more security a man can afford to buy, the more likely he is to seek the stimulating insecurity of the race car, the hang-glider, the big-game safari.

It was not the lure of a rocking chair which motivated men to move westward around this planet into new frontiers beyond the beyond; it was the thrilling quest by restless men who thrived on uncertainties.

When government is there to make certain that you have a floor under your income and a roof over your head; when government is there to go your bail, fill your belly, heal your hurts, what does a generation reared in this hothouse environment do? Bust out.

With all that unprecedented security, we seek escape in unprecedented numbers from this world into the ultimately insecure world of pills, booze and narcotics.

You know why the farmer is the happiest of men? He works harder yet lives longer. It's not all that fresh food and fresh air. Most farmers buy what they eat from the grocery store like the rest of us.

The farmer has been willing for 25 years to settle for less than a 1 per cent return on his investment because every season he gets to match wits with bugs and market prices and the vagaries of weather. He resists unions, pleads with government for less protection — and the only lines in the farmer's face are from grinnin'!

I'm told a President of the United States could never get re-elected if he pulled the featherbed out from under that one-seventh of our population which is on welfare, but what a shame — for them.

Sabbath conflicts

Agreed that sport and recreational activities are enjoyed by many families on the Sabbath. Some organizations hold practices and games for youths on the Sabbath during hours which are reserved for Biblical insturctions and-or worship.

Why not schedule these wholesome sports events at hours on the Sabbath which will permit families and youths to choose both experiences if they so desire?

The Boy Scouts of America is a good example of an organization which has encouraged Bible teachings and actions within the framework of their operations. They have not conflicted with the usual hours observed thru the efforts of institutions on Sabbath Days to foster higher levels of acceptable behaviors and to provide wholesome treatments of personal management problems.

Postoffice anniversary

I came upon a Last Day Cancellation envelope franked by Charter Oak, Calif. dated March 31, 1954.

According to my records this postoffice was established in 1899. This year, therefore, marks the 75th anniversary of the founding of this postoffice, not much larger than a telephone booth, which was reported to be the smallest in the nation. — W. O. Hokanson, La Verne.

Gossip for today

My heart bleeds for those American women who contend that because of sex discrimination they have been relegated to an inferior citizen status. Particularly I bemoan the situation a wife now finds herself in. According to her sworn statement, the dry cleaner charged her more for cleaning her pant suit than he charged her husband for cleaning his suit, including the vest. But since there is no law in the United States to prohibit sex discrimination in connection with the cleaning of men's and women's pants, about all I can do is to ask her: Why don't you move to Russia?

In Russia Women's Liberation has been an actuality for decades. There the gals not only have equal rights but also equal pay. Eighteen million Russian women fill more than half the country's jobs. Sixty per cent of the college students are women. Sixty-five per cent of the teachers are women. And, believe it or not, seventy-five per cent of the doctors are also women. What's more, just to demonstrate how far advanced they are over the decedent capitalistic countries, Russians really go all out for International Women's Day. On that date the men buy the women flowers and gifts and, just for good measure, the men also do all the housework.

Ford's strengths ..or weaknesses?

WASHINGTON — How badly have we misjudged Vice President Gerald Ford?

One of the more curious features of this city is the manner in which a man gets a reputation — as a penetrating constitutional authority, as a discerning expert on foreign affairs, or as a plodding, unimaginative congressional minority leader.

An anecdote can move with a man for years — as has President Johnson's story about Ford's having played football too often with his helmet off.

Men get a reputation for brains in this capital city when they are good with words, to wit, "Ask not what your country can do for you . . ."

Ford's literary style, by comparison, is more limited, his voice is a little flat.

Other men become admired for their wit, charm and charisma, qualities sometimes confused with intelligence.

Ford is lacking in these virtues too. A friend says "Gerry's unadventurous, unimaginative, even pedestrian in his thinking."

Presidents, senators and congressmen have gained prestige and intellectual stature when they or their speech writers enunciate innovative concepts — which may or may not work.

Even Ford's admirers don't claim originality is his trademark. As a result, in one way or another, Ford has been described as a seat warmer without visible signs of leadership. But the qualities outlined above are not those most required of a president.

What then about Gerald Ford?

Says an old college friend, "He's slow to embrace new ideas; but no one has to tell him anything twice. He doesn't try to change the system. He sees his job as trying to make it work."

A legislator who worked with Ford on Capitol Hill for a decade says, "I don't know about his brightness or his originality. But as an administrator he's tops. You come to him for a decision. He asks sharp questions — brings in other people, asks them about some gaps in what you've said, and seeks confirmation or objections. Then makes his decision. It's usually the right one, well-reasoned and to the point — not wishy-washy. He's tops in this business."

"Earlier GOP House leaders ran one-man shows," says an old timer on the Hill, now retired. "Ford expanded the leadership to a nine-man team and never made important decisions alone. As president, I think he'd operate with a cabinet-type administration, rather than with an elite White House staff."

Says another former colleague, "He doesn't give you any of that 'I'll see what I can do' stuff like so many men here on the hill do when they know they can't, or won't, do anything. He will tell you right off, 'I can't buy that, but here's what I can do.' And then he does it."

Other men use these words in describing Ford: comfortable, reassuring, honest, sensible, normal, a feeling for tradition, not slipshod — and, every so often, "not very bright."

Another aspect of Gerry Ford, mentioned by many men and women in Washington, was stated succinctly by one: "When Gerry looks at you out of those soft eyes, you can't say 'no'."

There obviously are strengths as well as weaknesses in the vice-president.

Just a bit of S.D. in 26th District

SAN DIMAS — The recent reapportionment put less than a third of a mile of San Dimas within the boundaries of the new 26th Congressional District which includes all of neighboring Charter Oak and Glendora.

The new 26th District includes the other communities of Sierra Madre, Temple City, Bradbury, Duarte, Azusa, Baldwin Park, San Marino, Alhambra, San Gabriel, South Pasadena and a portion of Pasadena.

The district includes a population of 465,000. Voter registration at the Los Angeles County Registrar of Voters office as of Jan. 1 showed 109,000 Republicans and 96,382 Democrats in the district.

Rep. John H. Rousselot, now of the 24th District, is unchallenged in his bid for the Republican nomination in the June 4 primary. Four Democrats have filed for their party's nomination.

They are Pat Patton, a post office clerk from San Gabriel; Paul A. Conforti, attorney and educator from Glendora; Nancy Seegmiller, teacher from Sierra Madre; and Roger Reginer, who did not make his occupation public when he filed for the office.

The boundaries of the district in San Dimas begin at Valley Center Avenue on the west, Arrow Highway on the south, Gladstone Street on the north and the 210 Freeway on the east.

The area includes the 50-acre site San Dimas has tagged for its regional shopping center at Lone Hill Avenue and Arrow Highway, Gladstone Elementary School, the 10-acre Lone Hill Park and about 300 homes.

L.V. Chamber board studying slogan ideas

LA VERNE — The La Verne Chamber of Commerce board spent some time at its recent retreat considering the more than 20 slogan ideas which had been submitted in a recent contest in the community. None of the suggestions captured the essence of La Verne to the satisfaction of the board.

However, in recognition of their interest, all those who submitted ideas were presented one of the State of California medallions struck for the Bicentennial celebration.

The search for a slogan has now been turned over to La Verne's Bicentennial Committee.

This committee is currently holding a contest for the design of a La Verne medallion for the Bicentennial celebration and it was thought that a slogan could very well be a part of that medallion. This committee, headed by chamber President R.G. Harris, has within its membership representatives from all the organizations in the community. The Chamber of Commerce was appointed by the City Council to handle the celebration in La Verne.

Old tires, reels are recycled as play equipment

SAN DIMAS — Through the efforts of parents and faculty members, with the help of the community, business and the school district, students at Allen Avenue Elmentary School are using innovative playground equipment during their recreation time.

Fourteen cable reels and five huge earth-mover tires are connected by bridges of automobile tires to offer a world of climbing and exploring experiences to children. To the side of the equipment is a tire mound for jumping and climbing.

Children are instructed in safety use procedures before being allowed to play on the equipment and extra supervision is being provided at the school during the initial phase of the equipment's use.

In addition to the climbing apparatus, mothers have been designing and painting new games on the school's blacktop playground area.

"The most beautiful part of the whole project is the parent participation," stated Elaine Harper, school principal.

"It's a wonderful feeling to see parents and teachers working together on something for the children.

"It's a parent-teacher project. As individuals, parents and teachers have donated their own time and money to make something for the kids."

An estimated cost of $1,400 was shared by Allen Avenue teachers from funds earned by individuals as consultant fees and by a PTA fund. Painting was done by parents and members of the San Dimas Optimist Club under the supervision of James Wtkins, chairman of Allen Avenue School's goals committee. Construction has been under the supervision of Dean White, chairman of the Father's Workshop.

The project was designed and supervised by Richard Coffman of Play Environments of La Verne. Spools were donated by Hubert Fox of General Cable Corp., Pomona. The Bonita Unified School District contributed help with the labor and skill for ground preparation, primer painting and obtaining, transporting and storing materials.

HOBBYIST HOOKS ANOTHER RUG

La Verne College associate professor of history Nicholas Polos is proud of the second hooked rug he's presented to the college. This one, bearing the college's shield in green and orange on a light green background is valued at $400 and hangs in the President's Dining Room on campus. The rug was presented to the board of trustees at its recent spring meeting. Polos, who took up the craft as a hobby several years ago, has won many awards at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Bankrupt makes it big as hog farmer

KAHOKA, Mo. (UPI) — In two years, Charles B. McQuoid has risen from a bankrupt $600-a-year insurance salesman to head of a $115 million corporation financed by "personal loans" to him.

Although he hides the identity of the banks that lent him the money, McQuoid makes no secret of how he plans to spend it or of his previous financial problems, including several arrests and convictions in 1971 on check charges.

McQuoid is the president and only director of Missouri Foods International Inc., a corporation formed to establish the world's largest pork producing operation near this small northeastern Missouri town.

The operation would eventually produce up to 16 railroad cars full of pork per day, the equivalent of 2.5 million hogs per year—all of them born, fattened and slaughtered within a 5,000 acre complex employing some 2,000 people.

The plan is so big the Federal Trade Commission, at the request of Missouri's two U.S. Senators, is investigating its potential impact on the nation's pork market. Local hog farmers, fearing their livelihood might be in jeopardy, also are concerned.

If the operation succeeds, it could be a turn in the fortunes of the 53-year-old McQuoid, an insurance man most of his working years. He is a native of Memphis, Mo., a few miles west of here, and now lives in Chicago.

On May 28, 1972, McQuoid filed for bankruptcy in federal court at Chicago. He listed debts of $430,000, assets of $44, and 118 creditors in Missouri, Illinois and nine other states.

The petition gave McQuoid's income as an insurance salesman in 1970 and 1972 as $600 each year, and said that was his total income for those years. His 1971 income was not given.

He was declared bankrupt Oct. 6, 1972.

David Freitag, president of the Ohio Valley Financial Co. of Cincinnati, which lost $250,000 in McQuoid's insurance scheme, said, "McQuoid's a sharp guy. He's fairly intelligsnt. He's a man of ideas—a promoter. I wouldn't hire him to manage my business but I'd listen to his ideas."

In 1971, the year before he filed for bankruptcy, McQuoid was arrested in Columbia, Mo., on bad check charges involving amounts ranging from $50 to $500. He was ordered to pay fines and make restitution.

All that is in the past, McQuoid says, and should have no bearing on the success of the pork plant. He said he has made no secret of the bankruptcy, even making it a point to tell local people about it.

"It really shouldn't concern them," he says. "Some large banks have agreed to finance me on this and they obviously don't seem too concerned about my background."

Officers suspended for their long hair

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Police Chief Ray Hobbler suspended two of his officers Tuesday for 15 days because their hair was longer than he said it should be.

One of the officers had hidden his hair under a wig. But Hobbler said a policeman's natural hair had to conform to the department's regulations.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Teasing children

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: About a month ago, I was invited to a friend's home for a large family dinner. I brought my two children, 4 and 6. There were other children at the gathering, as well as a number of adult friends of the hostess. The party was a great success for both the children and adults until some of the guests had a few too many cocktails.

I was upset by a single man in his late 30s who took delight in playing with the children, but also in teasing them in a way that I found dangerous and offensive. He insisted on calling the little boys "little girls" and the little girls "boys." He did this in such a serious way that I could see from the expression on the children's faces that they were troubled and disturbed by his deliberate errors. I finally said something rude to him about his behavior. This offended my hostess and she still thinks I was wrong because, according to her, most of the adults were enjoying this and it was quite harmless. — R.G.

Dear R.G.: Adults who tease children are usually acting out some hostility they feel for them. This aggression is often quite unconscious, but teasing is an angry act and the one who is teased is actually the object of hostility.

The adult who teases small children about their sexual identity is probably acting out some of his own problems on the subject. Unconsciously it relieves some of his anger when he makes a joke about sexual differences. He is not just teasing the children but, in a subtle way, he is also teasing all the adults in the room and telling them that their gender and their children's gender is non-existent and interchangeable. Unfortunately, he chose to use the children as a vehicle to express his own neurotic conflicts.

Many adults have mixed feelings about children. They may find themselves deeply moved by and attracted to them. These powerful emotions may be frightening to the individual involved, and he may use teasing as a way of fighting off his attraction. In other words fearing that the attraction may get out of control, he sets up a barrier to protect himself from his own emotions. Teasing puts a distance between him and the children.

According to Dr. Louis Hott, Medical Director of the Karen Horney Psychoanalytic Clinic in New York City, by age 3 a child usually establishes a healthy sexual identity by watching the parent of the same sex, and by forming positive attachments to the parent of the opposite sex. While the situation you mention might produce momentary confusion in a child, it would not be apt to have any lasting effect unless the child was already in trouble. A healthy, well-adjusted child of 4, 5 or 6 should be able to laugh at such remarks and shouldn't feel in any way threatened.

Extension conference scheduled at UCLA

Meeting survey requirements affects every nurse on every level and in every kind of health care institution-acute, mental health and long-term care.

The impact of new regulations on departments of nursing services will be explained at a day-long UCLA Extension conference on "Preparing for Hospital Surveys," April 3, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., at the Hospittal of the Good Samaritan Medical Center auditorium, 634 South Lucas in Los Angeles.

Designed for all those working in nursing services, the program will present current accreditation standards required by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals and the State of California Department of Health, their interpretation and some of the problem areas most frequently encountered by surveyors.

Surveying agencies will be represented by speakers experienced in the field. In a workshop session, participants may renew skills or learn ways of identifying and solving problems on both staff and administrative levels. The program will conclude with a report of group achievements.

Conference chairmen are Drs. Paul R. Torrens, professor and chairman of the division of health services and hospital administration at the UCLA School of Public Health, and Howard Schwartz of Howard Schwartz and Associates, medical administrative consultants in Beverly Hills. The fee is $30.

Further information is available by writing Marian L. Kosht, Continuing Education in Health Sciences, University Extension, UCLA, or telephone (213) 825-6514 or 825-6458.

Choosing godmother

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: We are expecting our second baby. My husband is an only child, and my only sister is godmother to our first baby. We would like to have someone else for the next baby. Would it be improper not to invite my sister to the christening? — Mrs. T.G., Asbury Park, N.J."

Don't exclude your sister from the christening just because you don't invite her to be godmother again. Choose a woman friend or other relative more or less your own age. Your sister undoubtedly does not expect to be asked again and might even prefer not to be.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I was recently invited to a shower for a woman who is having her third baby. She and relatives living nearby have all shared baby clothes for their babies, and so the reason for the shower was to provide a few new things. Many of the people invited had barely a nodding acquaintance with the mother, although we all live in a new neighborhood. Was this right? — Mrs. S.S., Jersey City, N.J."

I don't object to a shower for the third baby, especially as it was evidently needed. Mere acquaintances should not have been invited, although understandably they often are in neighborhoods where everyone is a newcomer.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: What is considered a really correct luncheon cocktail to order in a restaurant? I've been with people who have ordered whisky sours, martinis, daiquiris. I don't care for sweet drinks but like a mild sherry. I suppose it depends what you are having for lunch. Please advise. — Mrs. S.M., Shrewesbury, Mass."

You might want to stick to your sherry, but don't be under the illusion that it is so "mild." All sherries are fortified. You might try a Kir, a pleasant French wine apertif which most bartenders know how to make. Don't feel you must drink something alcoholic if you don't want to.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: When you receive a luncheon or dinner invitation and immediately reply with a regret, are you obligated in any way to the hostess? — Mrs. T.H., Brooklyn, N.Y."

Not unless you want to be.

Wizard of Oz

Fans are organized

By PAMELA REEVES

KINDERHOOK, Ill. (UPI) — There are Munchkiss, Gillikins, Winkies and Quadlings living amongst us all over the United States, scarcely ever recognized—except by each other.

Their numbers include teachers, professors, engineers, editors, business executives and children.

They all have one thing in common—an abiding love of the classic story of the Wizard of Oz and its author, Lyman Frank Baum, which led them to membership in the International Wizard of Oz Club.

"We like to pretend the United States, like Oz, is divided into five parts," said club secretary Fred Meyer, who incorporated the organization in this small western Illinois town.

"Munchkins live in the eastern United States, the Winkies are in California, the Quadlings in the south and the Gillikins in the north." In the center, of course, is the Emerald City, which Dorothy and Toto found by following the yellow brick road.

Meyer, a junior high school teacher in Escanaba, Mich., was one of 16 charter members of the club when it was founded in New York in 1957 and he remains one of the most active.

His hometown is Kinderhook, where he still spends his summers. Since it was his duty as club secretary to take care of membership and legal matters, the club is incorporated here.

More than 1,100 people in dozens of states and several foreign countries are now members and Meyer said more are joining gradually.

"Many of them are adults who read the Oz books as children and look back on them with nostalgia," he said. "Some are children and some I'm sure are close to 90 years old."

Meyers, 47, said his interest in Oz started 40 years ago.

"The Wizard was a present for my seventh birthday and somehow I loved the book," he said. "When I found out there were other people interested that broadened my interest and then of course it became sort of a treasure hunt to find more of Baum's materials."

Baum, who published the Wizard in 1900, was a prolific writer of books and essays. Meyer said more and more original material keeps turning up.

Three times a year the club publishes a magazine called "Baum Bugle" containing short, obscure works by Baum, or sometimes original Ozoriented materials by club members.

Interest in the club was sparked recently by publication of "The Annotated Wizard of Oz," a 384-page book compiled by 22-year-old club member Michael Patrick Hearn.

The book, covered in bright yellow and "emerald" green, contains maps of Oz, original drawings of Dorothy, Toto, the Tin Woodsman, the Cowardly Lion and the Scarecrow, as well as assorted Munchkins, Winkies and all the rest.

It also includes some interesting theories about Oz.

Oz scholars believe Dorothy was five or six yeras old when she first visited the Wizard, they think Toto was a mongrel dog and believe the Emerald City had a population of 57,318.

The name Oz, according to stories in Oz circles, was devised by Baum on the spur of the moment one afternoon when he was telling his children about Dorothy's adventures. Someone asked the name of the land Dorothy visited, and Baum, looking quickly about the room, spotted filing cabinets marked A-N and O-Z. He chose the latter and thus Oz was born.

The book also faults Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's 1939 production of the book (starring Judy Garland). At the end Dorothy tells Aunt Em she must have been dreaming. In the original story, the adventure is not passed off as a dream, and some scholars of children's literature consider passing a fantasy off as a dream it a cop out.

Meyer said questions such as these are discussed by club members who attend an annual convention in Castle Park, Mich., near Baum's former summer home, and in regional meetings held during the year.

"I go to all the conventions," he said. "We talk about Oz a great deal, sometimes play Ozingo (bingo with Oz characters), show movies and put on plays about Oz.

"We have an auction of the Baum material and people bid like crazy for these things. Recently, they were bidding $25 for a late (recent) edition of a Baum book. Incredible."

Meyer said Baum's family has been "very very helpful in providing the club with Baum's works, but that is what you would expect of Oz, I guess."

Auxiliary schedules smorgasbord

The American Legion Auxiliary to Post 299, Chino, has scheduled its annual smorgasbord from noon until 8 p.m. Sunday at the American Legion Hall in Chino.

Girls' State came into being to provide citizenship training for girls of high school age; to afford them the opportunity to live together as a self governing body; to inform them to duties, priveleges, rights and responsibilities of American citizenhhip so they may understand and participate in functions of government; and to help them grasp the meaning of responsibilities which they must assume as adults.

The girls have their own state and city officials. They have their own senate, house and city councils. Colleen Kayashima, last year's Girl Stater was elected to post of supreme judge.

Nevada tops in Mustangs

More than half the wild mustangs left in this country are in Nevada . . . A war was going on one place or another in all but 24 of the 150 years between 1816 and 1965. . .Did you realize only about a third of the homes in Germany West and East have bathrooms?. . .Those handwriting experts say that people who make stencil letters are hypocritical . . . Peculiar thing about the burrowing owl is it hisses a noise like a rattlesnake's buzz when scared.

The Tobacco Institute financed research in Southern California wherefrom came the announcement that brain-wave devices prove that cigarette smokers think more than nonsmokers. Surprised?

LOVE AND WAR

If the girl isn't particularly good-looking, two out of three men say they won't write her name in their little black books. But if the man isn't especially handsome, only one out of five girls say they'd turn him down for a date. Our Love and War man found that out in an examination of surveys taken recently among college students. He says it indicates the female tends to be wiser than the male in the selection of companionship.

Q — "What are the age and height requirements to join that national organization known as "The Little People of America'?"

A — Legal age. Depends somewhat on where you live. And less than 4-feet-10.

Q — "How big is the heart of a baby eight months before it's born?"

A — A tenth of an inch long. And it has already begun to beat.

LEFT HAND

A passage in the Old Testament implies that left-handers tend to be more skillful than right-handers. Most of the modern scientists don't concur. That biblical item also suggests the incidence of left-handedness to be about 2.7 per cent. But today's experts think it's closer to 7 per cent.

The Internal Revenue Service has ruled officially that age does not diminish the beauty of American girls. This came about after a batch of models in Washington, D.C., formally filed a claim for a depreciation allowance. It wasn't a new notion. Professional athletes have tried it. And dancers, too. And hod carriers. Even ladies of the night in Nevada. With no luck.

Credit the porcupine, too, with the fact that numerous black bears starve to death. Quills get stuck in the bears' tongues, that's why.

It is typical of the woman physician to have three children.

$1 billion highway to open up Africa

NAIROBI (UPI) — Africa's first superhighway, a $1 billion project linking the Atlantic and Indian Oceans across the continent's waist, may soon become a reality.

Six countries—Kenya, Uganda, Zaire, Central African Republic, Cameroon and Nigeria—are cooperating on the road which will eventually open up some of the world's most inaccessible areas to tourists and businessmen alike.

The four-lane road will cut through such areas as Zaire's Ituri Forest where Africa's famed Pygmies have lived for centuries undisturbed by progress, loop around Uganda's snow-tipped Mountains of the Moon and onto Kenya's game plains.

Eventually, feeder roads from the Somali capital of Mogadishu, and from Lusaka in Zambia and Sudan's Khartoum, will link into the highway, forging a network of roads spanning almost the entire continent.

British colonial administrators first envisaged a trans-Africa highway, a vertical Cape-to-Cairo route. But the Black African nations have opted for a "horizontal" road linking the Nigerian capital of Lagos to the old Arab trading port of Mombasa on Kenya's Indian Ocean coast.

4,000-Mile Route

The British consulting firm of T.P. O'Sullivan and Partners and a French company, Le Bureau Central d'Etudes pour les Equipments d' Outre-Mer, have made a preliminary survey of the 4,000-mile route.

A spokesman said three-quarters of the route is already classed as some type of roadway, but will have to be substantially improved and an additional 1,000 miles of road built from scratch.

The African governments estimate the $1 billion project will take four years to complete fully but Robert Gardner of the Economic Commission of Africa (ECA) said: "It is our determination that the first inaugural trip to Lagos will be performed in 1976."

It will be one of the most ambitious engineering feats undertaken in Africa but the interested countries are looking to the road to open up vast new tracts of land for development.

Tourism Bonanza

Some of the new areas are thought to be extremely rich in minerals and others could trigger a financial bonanza from tourism.

Such institutions as the World Bank, the International Development Bank, the International Road Federation and the United Nations' World Food Program have expressed interest in helping the project. So have several nations, including France, the United States, Britain, West Germany, Sweden, Japan and Belgium.

Visiting judge is entitled to prevailing pay

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger said today that justice court judges sitting in other districts where the job pays more are entitled to that higher pay while they are on the job.

Younger's formal opinion was requested by Butte County Counsel Daniel V. Blackstock.

The visting judge would not receive full salary from both districts, Younger said, but he would be entitled to a differential for the higher salary in the temporary district.

Younger said it would make no difference if the judge was visiting in a municipal court, a district court in his home county, or a district court outside of his home county.

Ganesha's Porter tops Valley team

'Sky King' considers college offers

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

Walking into the front bedroom of the Pomona home of Greg and Sadie Porter, it is easy to determine several things about their oldest son Cleve.

First thing to catch the eye is that the Ganesha senior is a sports fan, as the walls are dotted with pictures of athletic action. His favorite sport? Simple—basketball.

Looking around the room more carefully, it becomes apparent that Cleve Porter is not only a fan, but also a participant—a very good participant. 1972-73 3rd Team All-CIF honors rest on one wall; All-Pomona Valley awards are on another. Everything suggests that this 18-year-old is an All-This or an All-That.

A final inspection of the interior decorating reveals that Porter is not exactly out of the same mold as a Billy Barty or a Mickey Rooney. The plaques, trophies and pictures are at the level that would give many people nose bleeds.

Definitely not out of a midget mold. In fact many observers and basketball experts believe that the mold which produced Cleve Porter may have never been used before and may never see creative action again. He is one of a kind.

And that is partly why Cleve Porter is the 1973-74 Pomona Valley Player of the Year.

Little is known about the soft-spoken Porter, who was also honored today by being named to the All-CIF 3-A Second team basketball squad. But while his walls speak a story of their own, there is quite a person wrapped up inside that 6-5, 185 pound frame.

Cleve is the middle child in his family. The girls got off to a fast break with Ruby (22) and Sarah (20) coming first. But following Cleve were David (13) and Keith (10) and the Porters had their starting five.

Always possessing a natural talent, Cleve was first introduced to basketball in eighth grade, when he was already a six footer.

"Mr. Lewis at Palomares Junior High was the first to get me started in basketball," explained Cleve. "When I came to Ganesha, I was a starter in my sophomore year and the coach helped me a lot. He didn't change my game physically, he just gave me some fine points."

"The coach" referred to by Cleve is Gary Fulkerson who handled Porter throughout his high school career.

"As a sophomore, you could see glimpses of his great potential," Fulkerson recalled. "I remember Ron Feist, former head coach at Garey, looking at Cleve for the first time and saying that he was going to be a pro player some day."

Feist might be correct as Porter may very well wind up in the pros. But the sport might not be basketball.

Considered an outstanding prospect in baseball, Cleve worked as a pitcher in the summer with the Montreal Expos having high hopes for him.

But if Cleve were asked to choose between the two sports today it would be easy as basketball would win—gloves down.

It is a simple fact that some people view a young black athlete today, who is on the quiet side, as being of less than average intelligence. So to clear things up, here are some stats just as impressive as his hoop figures rolled up in the past few years.

Porter is an excellent student with a grade point average in excess of 3.0. He was actually eligible to graduate last year but wanted another year of experience under hs wings on the basketball courts in high school.

Expressing a desire to play ball in the Pacific Eight next season, because "there is more competition there than anywhere else," Porter has narrowed his choices down to three—USC, UCLA and Cal Berkeley.

When not playing basketball, Cleve likes to occupy his time by resting his mind and doing pencil sketches. He also enjoys English at school but plans to major in business in college.

Explains Porter, "If I should be in a position some day to make money by playing basketball I want to be able to know how to handle things myself. I don't want to have to rely on an agent."

Being the key figure on the San Antonio League champion Giants, Cleve set several goals for himself at the start of the 73-74 season.

"The main thing I wanted to improve was my rebounding. I needed to become more aggressive on the boards and of course I wanted our team to win the league crown."

Averaging 20.5 points per game and 18 rebounds a contest, Porter was the most dominating figure in the SAL. Pomona head coach Fred Taylor summed it up best when he described the Ganesha attack.

"They have an explosive ball club but everyone can be checked except Porter. He's unstoppable."

Ironically, Porter's best games this year, according to him and Fulkerson, came in Ganesha's losses to Pasadena and Tustin. Scoring 31 and 32 in these two games, Cleve impressed local scouts enough to land a spot on a team that left Wednesday for Brazil.

Proudly wearing his USA-AAU jacket everywhere this week, Porter joined nine other California high school stars for a two-week trip to Sao Paulo to compete with teams from Argentina, Peru and Uruguay.

Known as "Sky King" while on the court (a name he gave himself because "all the other players had nicknames"), Porter has not yet approached his peak as a player. His best years are still ahead of him.

Porter says his skinny frame makes him look taller than the listed 6-5. This reasoning never did much for Twiggy and the real reason Porter looks taller is that his head is above other players who are also 6-5.

Until he jumps, that is. Then it's his waist that's at the head of opponents. And with the best yet to come, look for the name of Cleve Porter to get even bigger and bigger.

THE POMONA VALLEY'S FIVE

After sifting through the talent in the Pomona Valley these five emerged as the All-Pomona Valley first team. They include (left to right) Kirk Christ of Walnut, Mark Gosswiller of Montclair, Cleve Porter of Ganesha, Broderick Hunter of Ganesha and Curt Oldenkamp of Upland.

Garvey stars for Dodgers

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A bases-loaded single by Steve Garvey capped a three-run rally in the seventh inning to give the Los Angeles Dodgers their 11th straight victory—a 9-7 win Wednesday over the Texas Rangers.

Relief pitcher Don Stanhouse, playing for the first time in 2½ weeks because of shin splints, walked four batters in the decisive seventh. The tie breaking run was pushed across on his bases-loaded walk to Tom Paciorek.

Dodger Tommy John picked up the victory, going seven innings. He gave up 10 hits and five walks.

The Rangers managed a fourrun rally in the sixth inning, batting around with singles by Toby Harrah and Alex Johnson, a double by rookie catcher Jim Sundberg and a triple by Lenny Randle.

Gaylord Perry one-hits Halos

TUCSON (UPI) — One-hit pitching by Gaylord Perry carried the Cleveland Indians to a 4-1 victory over the California Angels Wednesday in exhibition play.

Perry fanned seven and retired 21 of the 22 batters he faced in seven innings. Denny Doyle got the only hit off Perry, a triple, and scored on Richie Scheinblum's sacrifice fly to right.

Relievers Cecil Upshaw and Tom Hilgendorf came in to pitch hitless ball the last two innings, lifting the Indians to an 8-7 spring record. Only 29 Angels went to the plate and the team is now 10-7 for the spring.

The Indians' final run came in the seventh on back-to-back doubles by Oscar Gamble and John Ellis.

Coach of the Year

Moore tries to have 'fun'

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

"Basketball has to be fun . . . I hope I make it fun," said Montclair High basketball coach Lanny Moore. "If each kid does the best job he can do there's nothing for him to be ashamed of."

Basketball is a team sport composed of individuals. And each individual is different. He's different than his teammates in personality, attitude, ability, competitiveness, and self confidence.

What do these attributes have to do with basketball?

They're more important than most people realize.

Lanny Moore is aware of the individuality of his Cavalier players.

"Kids like to know you're concerned with them off the court as well as on," said the second-year Montclair coach who was chosen Pomona Valley Coach of the Year.

"We got together early in the season and evaluated ourselves in areas of self confidence, ambition, competitiveness, attitude, and personal goals. Then once a week or so we sat down together and discussed our questions and problems.

"It gives me something concrete I can talk about," said Moore. "It helps me understand their moods and drives better."

Moore in just two years at the helm of the Cavaliers has directed the team to the basketball playoffs twice, piloting teams that supposedly have had the talent that some of the other teams have had.

The 1972-73 Cavs placed third in the San Antonio League with a mark of 8-6, 15-11 overall and wound up their season losing to Katella, 75-40, in the first round of the CIF 3-A playoffs.

This year (1973-74) Montclair finished SAL play in second place with a 9-5 slate, 14-12 overall and dropped a first round CIF decision to a red-hot Colton team 64-59 that shot 59 per cent from the floor.

"I think we played about as well as we could play in that game," said Moore. "But it's hard to beat a team that shoots that well."

In 14 years of coaching Moore stated that he's never had a team he didn't enjoy coaching.

"Each group is different, each has a different personality. This team is as good a team as I've ever had discipline-wise. They believed in themselves."

"Some of the key people worked real hard and spent a lot of hours practicing on their own and more of them went to summer basketball camps. They really got to believing in themselves when they found they could play as a team."

"This was a very inexperienced team and as you know experience is hard to beat," continued the 1960 La Verne College graduate who lettered in football, basketball, baseball and track.

"Jerard Bryant didn't play his junior year while Mark Gosswiller didn't play his freshman year and sat on the bench his sophomore season. Reece Snapp sat on the bench his freshman season and didn't even play as a sophomore. That's a combined total of six years playing time.

LANNY MOORE

"But they improved by leaps and bounds from the beginning to the end of the year."

In 1960, the Modesto graduate took the baseball chores at Emerson Junior High and guided the Eagles to a tie for the league championship.

His teams won the title from '61 to '65 where Moore had the privilege of coaching such names as Bob Seagren, the world renowned pole vaulter; Doug Byrd, a relief specialist with the Kansas City Royals; Mike Cichon, who advanced to triple-A ball in the Minnesota Twins organization before a sore arm forced his retirement; and Doug Westlake, who made major college fame at the U. of Washington in baseball and basketball, and now coaches at Ganesha High.

Moore spent a year-and-a-half at Chaffey High as assistant varsity baseball and football coach before assuming the role as varsity basketball coach at Montclair in '67.

That year his Cavs finished second with a 19-6 slate and featured Bert Karrer.

From 1969-72, a dedicated Lanny Moore coached basketball, football and baseball while his wife Sharon continuously offered encouragement and support to her husband for assuming the time-consuming positions.

The past two seasons Moore decided to switch rather than fight and went back to coaching one sport — basketball.

The results have proven the decision a good one as the veteran skipper directed Montclair to two straight trips to the CIF playoffs.

Only one thing bothers Moore about the talent that comes from the Pomona Valley and that's the lack of notoriety given them from the CIF.

"I can't understand why the CIF doesn't give more recognition to some of the talent here in the valley" stated a concerned Moore.

"How can (Cleve) Porter not make first team All-CIIF and Mark Gosswiler didn't even make the third team.

"Here's a guy that shot 54 per cent from the field, averaged 20 points and 13 rebounds a game, shattered most of the school records, and was one of the real keys to why we won.

"I just can't understand it."

Trailblazers win the toss for Big Red

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — The Portland Trailblazers have won the right to choose UCLA center Bill Walton in the National Basketball Association's college draft.

They won it on a coin flip with the Philadelphia 76ers Wednesday, and now the question is: Can Portland get Walton to sign?

The 6-11, three-time all-American, considered a franchise-maker, has expressed a preference to play in Southern California, where he likes the warm weather and outdoor living.

Walton was not available for comment, but UCLA coach John Wooden, asked whether he thought the star would sign with the Trailblazers, said:

"I have no idea, but I rather imagine that he will. I think he wants to play pro basketball. I think he prefers the NBA to the ABA (American Basketball Association)."

Wooden said he doubted Portland would trade the draft rights to Walton, adding: "I'd make every effort to sign him if I were Portland."

The president of the Trailblazers, Herman Sarkowsky, said he would do just that.

Asked about a possible trade of Walton to the Los Angeles Lakers, Sarkowsky said, "There will be none whatsoever."

"I think that he will probably play for Portland, which has demonstrated itself with Sidney Wicks," said Sarkowsky.

Wicks is another former UCLA All-American who plays for the Trailblazers.

"Portland will be a good home for Bill," said Sarkowsky. "I think that Portland has definite advantages for outdoor living, but Bill can still live elsewhere six months of the year if he chooses—go to the beaches and so forth."

Sam Gilbert, a sort of godfather to UCLA players who helps them in contract negotiations, indicated Walton would play with Portland if the proper deal is made.

He indicated the star center would play for a West Coast team under the right circumstances.

Greg Lee, a UCLA basketball guard who has been a close friend of Walton, was quoted by his father, Marvin Lee, coach of the Reseda, Calif., High School basketball team, as saying at the recent NCAA championship competition at Greensboro, N.C.:

"I know there's no way Bill would go to Philadelphia."

The elder Lee added, "Bill's his own man. He'll do what he wants to do."

There have been reports that Walton might command as much as $4 million because of his potential as a franchisemaker.

Sarkowsky, asked about a contract offer for Walton, said: "I have no idea about it at this time."

Portland and Philadelphia earned the right to take part in the coin flip by having the two worst records in the NBA. It took place at the Beverly Hills Hotel, and marked Portland's fourth consecutive participation in an NBA coin flip.

MSAC Relays field grows with Bruin, Trojan entries

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio Relays meet director, Hilmer Lodge, has lined up two of the nation's top collegiate track and field powers for the 1974 relays.

UCLA, which has become and NCAA track and field powerhouse in recent years, and USC, its top rival and threat, are both entered for this year's relays, set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 26, 27 and 28.

UCLA is coming off a great 1973 campaign in which Jim Bush's Bruins won track and field's "triple crown" — the 1973 NCAA crown, the Pacific-8 Conference and the national dual meet title.

USC, under Vern Wolfe, was forced to chase UCLA all season, but the Bruins' Bush has already conceded that this year's Trojans will be a top contender for Pac-8 and NCAA crowns.

Versatility in the field events has always been a trade mark of Bush's UCLA teams and this year's squad shows more of the same.

In a triangular meet with San Jose State and Long Beach State recently, four UCLA athletes set lifetime bests in field events.

Clarence Taylor, a newcomer who transferred to the Bruins from St. Louis, triple jumped 54-11 ¾ for a personal record. The effort moved Taylor to No. 4 on the all-time U.S. list. It was also a UCLA school record.

Versatile Rory Kotinek tossed the javelin 253-8 for another PR and UCLA record. Kotinek, one of the mainstays of the UCLA squad, long jumped 25-5 for another personal best. He then capped his day with a 7-0¼ high jump using the Fosbury Flop style. That just missed his PR of 7-1 which was set using a straddle technique, his usual style.

Two freshmen recorded PR's in field events also, as Jerry Hearndon long jumped 25-10¾ and in Niedhart put the shot 63-3¾.

Gordon Innes, the talented distance runner from Upland High, showed that his sophomore year should be a great one with a 4:05 mile, his PR. Innes was UCLA's top steeplechase runner as a freshman in 1973, posting a school record of 8:55.8 the first time he ever ran the event.

Valley claims top talent

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

Once again, for the third consecutive year, the Progress-Bulletin is proud to present the Pomona Valley High School Basketball Team.

The year 1974 turned out to be one of the best years in the valley as far as individual talent goes, so instead of just picking three five-man teams, the P-B has added a list of honorable mentions to the roster.

This is the second year that the players were not chosen by position but by talent. Therefore, on the first team there are two centers, two forwards and a guard.

On the second team two centers, two guards and a forward were chosen, while four guards and a forward were placed on the third team.

Two players who were placed on the first team last year were again unanimously selected for the No.1 team again this season. They include Ganesha center Cleve Porter and Walnut forward Kirk Christ.

Others who are making return appearances this year on one of the three teams include Ganesha forward Broderick Hunter and Bonita guard Harold Drake.

Here are some capsule profiles of the All-Pomona Valley team:

First Team

KIRK CHRIST, Walnut—One of the rare athletes to come out of the valley, Kirk not only led the valley in scoring for the second consecutive year but this is the third time the Mustang gunner has been placed on the All-Valley teams.

He was a third-teamer as a sophomore, made first team last year, and returned to the first team this season.

Christ (pronounced Krist led the valley with a 23.3 scoring average and was also the leading point-producer in the Hacienda with a 22.3 mark. His field goal percentage wasn't too shabby either. The 6-6 senior forward hit 49 per cent from the floor this year and 68 per cent from the free throw stripe. For his career he was just a hair better, hitting 50 per cent from the field and the same 68 per cent from the line.

MARK GOSSWILLER, Montclair — Considered one of the more consistent players this year in the valley, Gosswiller ended up as the valley's fourth leading scorer with a 21-point average.

Mark was about all the Cavaliers had in the scoring column, taking his team to the playoffs after finishing in second place in the San Antonio League.

"I think Mark was one of the best all-round players in the area this year," said Montclair coach Lanny Moore. "I would take him over anyone else that I have seen this year."

Gosswiller shot 54 per cent from the field and 58 per cent from the throw line while averaging 13.5 rebounds an outing.

BRODERICK HUNTER, Ganesha — Believed it or not, some people thought Hunter outplayed his teammate Cleve Porter for most of the year.

There were times when he could have outplayed everybody.

The muscular 6-4 senior forward possessed many of the qualities of last year's Player of the Year, Greg Ballard of Garey.

Broderick averaged 17.4 points for the season and 16.7 in San Antonio League play, hitting 44 per cent from the field and 62 per cent from the line. His aggressive rebounding netted him an average of 15 boards an outing.

This is the second year Hunter has been placed on the All-Valley teams. Last year as a junior forward, he was selected for second-team honors.

CURT OLDENKAMP, Upland — Here is one guy who had San Antonio League fans wondering in disbelief.

Even though his team finished fifth in the SAL standings this past season, Curt finished the year as the league's leading scorer with a 23.9 average.

But he didn't do it all in league play. For the season, Curt averaged 21.8 points a game and wrapped the No. 2 in the valley scoring race behind Christ of Walnut.

He broke both the season scoring record (611 points) and the single-game record (40 points) this year at Upland. The blond 6-1 guard shot 50 per cent from the field and 74 per cent from the line.

CLEVE PORTER, Ganesha — "Sky King" is what they called him and you had to watch him to know why.

Cleve is probably the best leaper ever to come out of the Pomona Valley, and didn't do too bad in the offensive department either. He averaged 20.5 points per game for the season, 19.3 in league, and was named the Most Valuable Player in the San Antonio League.

His awesome rebounding abilities netted him an average of 15.9 caroms per game.

Second Team

BRUCE ABRAHAM, Claremont — A transfer from Washington, Abraham was just what the doctor ordered for the Wolfpack. Suffering from a lack of height, Claremont used Abraham's 6-foot-4 frame to work inside.

And Bruce responded well. He averaged 15.6 points per game for the season, which was tops for the club, a team which finished the year with a 20-7 record.

HAROLD DRAKE, Bonita — Last year Bonita High followers were waiting to see what Harold, more commonly known as H.P., would do this year as a junior.

Drake averaged 20.9 points per game this past season, finishing as the valley's fifth leading scorer for the year.

STU DUVALL, Upland — This 6-foot-5 center had to play in the shadow of Curt Oldenkamp all year, but he didn't go unnoticed. Averaging 16.6 points per game for the season, Stu ended up the 10th leading scorer in the valley.

TODD ERVIN, CLaremont — This little guy (5-foot-8) did a whale of a job for the Wolfpack for the past three years. He played every quarter of every game for the three season for the Pack, and finally got his recognition this year.

The quick senior guard was named to two all-tournament teams this year, and Claremont coached Jack Smith says of his star, "He's the best guard I have coached in my 15 years of coaching."

EARL WILSON, Ganesha — Talking about quick guards, here is one who really astonished not only fans but also opponents.

Ganesha coach Gary Fulkerson claims Wilson was the best guard in the valley with tremendous quickness.

Earl averaged 16.1 points a game for the season and 17.8 in league play.

Third Team

BILLY EVANS, Garey — The little Viking guard was one of the better outside shooters this year in the San Antonio League and in the valley.

Evans averaged 16.5 points per game for the season and a little less than 15 per outing in league play, most of them coming from the 20 to 25-foot range.

ROBERT MALAVE, Rowland — Robert is the only All-Valley player to come out of the Montview League this year. The Raider guard averaged 21.5 points per game for the season, which was third best in the valley.

MARCELLO MAURIN, Walnut — With fellow teammate Kirk Christ grabbing all the glory, this little frenchman still was an All-Hacienda League choice after averaging 13.1 points a game for the Mustangs.

MIKE PARTINGTON, Chaffey — Mike, the son of Ontario High head basketball coach Pat Partington, went down into the Tiger record books as the No. 1 assist man. Mike broke the school's all-time assist mark with 150 for the season, and also broke the single-game assist record three times this year.

TIM SMITH, Chino — Tim was one reason why Chino was considered one of the top contenders in the San Antonio League this year.

The 6-foot-7 forward for the Cowboys averaged 16.5 points a game for the season and 16.4 in league—a sign of consistency.

Four SAL cagers earn All-CIF honor

Ganesha High's two top players and two other guards from the San Antonio League have been selected to the All-CIF 3-A teams, it was announced today by the Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation.

Pomona Valley Player of the Year Cleve Porter, Claremont guard Todd Ervin and Upland guard Curt Oldenkamp were placed on the 3-A's second team, while Ganesha's Broderick Hunter was voted to the third team.

Porter, who was the Most Valuable Player in the San Antonio League, was listed as the third center in the division behind first-teamers Mike Santos of champion Morningside and Jeff Welshans of second place Katella.

Ervin was a three-year letterman for Claremont and was one of the top guards in the SAL, whole Oldenkamp was the leading scorer in the league.

Hunter, a first team All-SAL selection and also a first-teamer on the All-Pomona Valley roster this year, was probably the most aggressive forwardin the SAL.

Morningside's Santos and No. 1 ranked San Gabriel's outstanding guard Mark Scott was named the Co-Players of the Year in the 3-A by the All-Southern California Board of Basketball.

Semi-pro team seeks players

POMONA — Semi-pro baseball tryouts will be conducted by the Athena Pirates at Garey High Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

Interested ballplayers can contact field manager Victor Carraso for further information by telephoning 629-0793.

Owl spikers face battle at Palomar

Now Citrus College's track team will get its first real test of the season Friday afternoon.

The Owls, still unbeaten in the Mission Conference, will battle a tough Palomar squad on the Comets' track at 3 p.m. in what should be an interesting battle.

The Mission race should be between Grossmont, Citrus and Palomar so this could be a turning point for the Owls.

Meanwhile, Chaffey will be hosting San Diego City Friday at 3 p.m. in another Mission outing. And the Panthers are slight favorites to win it.

Mt. San Antonio College (2-0 in South Coast Conference) figures to have an easy time of it down in Santa Ana Friday as they battle the lowly Dons.

"I think our meet is going to be very close," said Citrus assistant track coach Vince O'Boyle earlier this week. "It might even go down to the mile relay (the last event of the meet)."

Citrus will have sprinter Rick Wilmoth back in competition after he sat out last weekend with a slight illness. Wilmoth holds the top marks in both the 100 and the 220 in the valley, running the 100 in 9.6 and the 220 in 21.5.

The Owls figure to have a lot of depth in the sprints since their No. 2 sprinter, Browning Allen, was selected this week's junior college athlete of the week. Allen won both the 100 and 220 in Wilmoth's absence last weekend.

Chaffey coach Chuck "Happy" Hicks figures his Panthers have a pretty good chance of beating San Diego City even after his squad took a beating from defending conference champion Grossmont last week, 95-50.

"San Diego is a spotty team," said the veteran Chaffey skipper. "I think we can probably beat them."

MSAC head coach Don Ruh and his assistant John Norton indicated earlier this week that they will probably do a little juggling with their squad against Santa Ana.

"Santa Ana's not very deep," stated Ruh. "But I think they're better than their scores have indicated. We'll make a lot of adjustments and see what some of our people can do in other spots."

Santa Ana lost to Cerritos earlier this season, a team MSAC defeated 116-29 last weekend.

Baseball leads at stake

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

The second week of prep baseball action concludes Friday with a pair of crucial games scheduled.

Montclair and Upland put the San Antonio League leadership on the line at 3:15 p.m. while Bonita hosts Alta Loma with a piece of the Hacienda League lead at stake.

Both teams risk 3-0 SAL slates in the Montclair hosted affair while the Scots have an 8-2 overall record. The Cavs are 7-3 overall.

Montclair has edged Claremont 3-2, shutout Ganesha 2-0 and outslugged Pomona 9-6. While Upland blanked Damien 4-0, edged Claremont 4-2 and beat Ganesha 6-4.

Cavalier Coach Tom McFadden will start southpaw fireballer Mike Medeiros (2-1, 1-0) on the mound. The 5-11 junior has a string of 14 scoreless innings including five against Pomona, seven against Ganesha to pick up the win and one against Claremont to receive credit for a save.

Upland coach Herb Christian will probably go with righthander Steve Iles. The 6-0 senior (3-1, 2-0) has thrown back-to-back four hitters, in the 4-2 win over the Wolfpack and a 4-0 blanking of Damien.

Montclair's hitting is led by Pat Proulx, Gary Baker, Mike Pittman, Medeiros and Ron Maroste while the Scots are paced by Russ Feaster, Stu DuVall, Mark Scheneekluth and Steve Smith.

In other SAL games Garey (1-2) is at Claremont (1-2), Damien (1-2) is at Pomona (1-2) and Chino (2-1) is at Ganesha (0-3).

Bonita is currently tied with Alta Loma, San Dimas and Gladstone for the top spot in the Hacienda League. All having posted 3-1 marks.

The Bearcats 6-4 overall, have bombed Walnut 9-0, ripped San Dimas 11-0, lost to Royal Oak 7-4, and clubbed Ontario 9-2.

The Braves, 9-4 overall, have won three straight since losing their league opener to Ontario, including a 5-1 decision over previously unbeaten Gladstone Tuesday.

Coach Dick Salomon will start sophomore sensation Billy Bumstead on the mound for the Bearcats.

The 5-11 righthander is 5-0 on the season and 3-0 in league play. Bumstead had a 22 scoreless inning streak that included three straight shutouts, snapped in Tuesday's win over Ontario.

The control pitcher threw four innings of three hit ball but allowed a run in the first inning against the Jaguars to break the string.

Bonita relies on the power hitting of Carl Davis and Rich Ortega and the consistency of Jay Lacheur, Bumstead and Harold Drake with the stick.

Salomon feels the maturity, along with the talent on the team, should make the Bearcats a definite contender.

In other HL action Walnut (1-3) is at Gladstone (3-1), Ontario (1-3) is at Sierra Vita (0-4), and San Dimas (3-1) is at Royal Oak (2-2).

Chaffey (4-0) visits Pacific in a Citrus Belt League contest while Rowland (1-2) entertains Charter Oak.

Leos bomb Point Loma in twinbill

SAN DIEGO — Rob Mayhew's pitching in the first game and some power hitting in the second game gave La Verne College a doubleheader sweep over hosting Point Loma Wednesday.

Mayhew went the full seven innings in the opener and recorded a 12-0 shutout, while allowing only three hits. The transfer from U.S. International University, where he led his team to the national NAIA championship, collected his second win of the season against three losses.

The La Verne bats weren't as explosive in the first game as they were in the second, however.

Led by three home runs, one of which was a grand slam, the Leopards ripped the hosts again, 13-2.

Mike Alonso led the home run parade with a three-run round-tripper in the second inning to give La Verne a 5-1 lead. Then after leading 7-2 going into the ninth inning, Wayne Redfearn clouted a two-run homer and Jim Sherman followed with a grand slam to humiliate Point Loma.

Alonso finished the day going four-for-six at the plate with five runs batted in. Other top performances at the plate were turned in be Jessie Mendoza (five-for-seven) and Sherman (three-for-five with his four ribbies).

La Verne, now 10-4 for the season, will return to Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference action next Tuesday at Occidental.

Upland, Ganesha girls in playoffs

Ganesha and Upland Highs will be the representatives from the San Antonio League in the first ever CIF girls' basketball playoffs, which begin Friday night.

Ganesha, runnerup in the SAL, will host Northview in the first round Friday night, while Upland will entertain Riverside's No. 2 team. Both games are slated to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the games are $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children.

Ganesha coach Juanita Tolbert will probably start Musiette McKinney (5-9) at center, Michele Levy (5-9) and Linda Brown (5-9) at forwards and Jackie Bowie (5-3) and Michelle Fractious (5-3) at guards.

Miss Levy is the leading scorer on the club with a 15-point average.

Upland starters will probably include Kathy Browning (5-11), Katie Wright (6-0), Linda McKeon (5-10) Cindy Koch (5-5) and Beckie Kelber.

The No. 1 seeded team in the playoffs in Palos Verdes, with Santiago, Bellflower and Santa Maria picking up the next three seedings.

The second round of the playoffs will be held Saturday, with the quarterfinals held Monday and the semis next Wednesday.

The finals will be held at Long Beach City College next Thursday.

Claremont Mustangs advance to semifinals

CLAREMONT — The Claremont Mustangs have advanced to the semifinals of the state American Youth Soccer Organization (YSO) playoffs by defeating the previously undefeated Pasadena Hawks, 3-1, in the Division II quarter-finals.

The Mustangs will host the Garden Grove Chargers at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Griffith Park (Sumner School). The winner will advance to the state finals next week at El Camino College.

In the Mustangs' most challenging game of the playoffs, Jim Peterson, Kerry Morrell and Randy Dacus stood out on defense while Jeff Pfeiffer played a steady game in the midfield area. Jeff Bolln played an outstanding game on defense in stopping Pasadena's high scoring center.

NBA says no to San Diego

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — The board of governors of the National Basketball Association Wednesday decided against adding a San Diego franchise for next season.

The NBA awarded New Orleans the league's 18th franchise earlier this month. The addition of San Diego would have given the league 19 teams.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced New Orleans would be in the league's Central Division, joining Capital, Atlanta, Houston and Cleveland.

San Diego Conquistador general manager Alex Groza said that the club's owner, Leonard Bloom, "is going to have to make up his mind to stay here."

"He may have to sell the club. To move to Los Angeles would be a mistake," Groza said.

Bloom had hoped to get the NBA franchise for his ABA club.

CLAREMONT — Webb School pushed its 1974 baseball record above the .500 mark Wednesday afternoon by defeating the Upland High junior varsity team, 12-6.

Webb, now 5-4 for the year, was paced by Gary Zakem, who hit his first home run of the year and drove in four runs.

Zakem, who went three-for-three at the plate, also saw some action on the mound — relieving starter Dan Wood in the fifth inning.

Other top hitters for Webb included junior Wally Pitts (two-for-four), shortstop John Baer (two-for-four) and third baseman Bob Wright (two-for-four).

Webb hosts Sherman Friday to open Arrowhead League action.

Grunion grabbers unusual breed

SACRAMENTO — Most fishermen eat breakfast before they go fishing, but there is one hardy breed that does it just the opposite way. They are the grunion grabbers, the hardy and optimistic people who put their faith in tide tables and biology.

Their rewards, if successful, are some of the most exciting and unusual fishing in the West and breakfast skillets full of tasty, crispy-fried grunion.

For the uninitiated grunion fishing sounds suspiciously like the proverbial snipe hunt.

More than one new arrival to California has been surprised to discover that people actually do catch grunion with their bare hands, and that grunion runs are governed by time, tides and the sex drive of the silvery little fish which comes ashore at night at peak high tides from March through July to lay their eggs in moist sandy beaches.

Grunion fishermen must have a fishing license if they are 16 or older, fish can be taken only with bare hands and although there is no limit, it's against the law to take more than you can use.

The procedure for catching grunion involves checking the tide tables to see when peak tides will occur after dark, picking a stretch of sandy beach and then waiting patiently for the fish to appear.

Although grunion runs will occur on most Southern California beaches, they may not occur every night on the same beach and may be limited to small parts of any particular beach.

The best places for fishing usually are at the ends of beaches, especially if there are fewer people there than elsewhere along the shore.

Some of the best grunion areas are the beach between Morro Bay and Cayucos, Pismo Beach, and beaches at Santa Barbara, Malibu, Santa Monica, Ventura, Hermosa Beach, Cabrillo Beach, Long Beach, Belmont Shore, Seal Beach, Huntington Beach, Newport Beach, Corona del Mar, Doheny Beach, Del Mar, La Jolla, Mission Beach and the Coronado Strand.

Since grunion tides occur between the hours of 11 p.m. and 3 a.m., grunion fishermen usually are short of sleep and ready for a hearty breakfast after their outings, and a menu featuring their tasty catch is a fitting reward.

Although many fishermen have their own favorite ways of preparing grunion, most people favor the deep frying method.

The fish should be scaled and cleaned, rolled in a mixture of flour and corn meal to which a little salt has been added and dropped in a pan of hot cooking oil. (The oil should be deep enough to cover the fish and hot enough to brown a cube of bread in about 30 seconds.

Let the fish cook until golden brown, remove and drain.

Although good tides for grunion occur from March through July, the months of April and May are closed to fishing to ensure protection of the grunion population.

Werner Buck will show fishing gear

LOS ANGELES — Major maufacturers of some 28 different brands of nationally known fishing gear will have exhibits along "Tackle Row" of Werner Buck's 29th annual Los Angeles Sportsmen's, Vacation and Travel Show at downtown L.A. Convention Center, April 12-21. Experts staffing the displays will offer free casting lessons as well as pass on tips on the correct tackle to use and where to look for the lunkers.

Tackle Row provides the largest exhibit in the country for public inspection of fishing gear. Two long casting ponds divide the displays, making it easy for the public to try out new rods and reels.

Buck also is lining up a series of fishing clinics, salt and fresh water. Several of the major manufacturers also are planning clinics in their own booths to augment the daily programs. Expert advice will be offered on the proper gear to use for various species of fish, the correct way to present it and how to read the water for the best chance of catching fish. Spinning, bait and fly casting will be covered.

RIVERSIDE — Evans LAKE, Fulmor Lake, Hemet Lake.

Colt tryouts set at Bonita

LA VERNE — Tryouts for the Colt League in the La Verne and San Dimas areas will be held Saturday at Bonita High at 10 a.m.

Boys interested in trying out must bring a birth certificate, along with his baseball equipment.

Signups for the Colt League will then be held April 6, at which time signups for the La Verne American Legion team will also be conducted.

Butler leads Citrus golfers

SAN DIEGO — Art Butler fired a four-under-par 69 Monday afternoon to lead Citrus to a 34-20 win over Grossmont in Mission Conference golf.

The win upped the Owls league mark to 3-1 and keeps them tied with Palomar with the lead.

DFG reports decrease in fish plants last year

SACRAMENTO — Department of Fish and Game hatcheries planted 55,372,494 fish weighing 4,134,216 pounds during the 1972-73 fiscal year, the DFG reported today.

The totals show that the department planted fewer fish than during 1971-72 when the figures were 60,632,631 fish and 4,464,291 pounds. Most of the decrease was in salmon fingerlings.

Some hatcheries were out of production during the year for renovation and expansion work, the DFG said.

Resident fish, accounting for 24,941,835 of the total number and 3,148,684 of the total poundage, included 11,076,907 catchable-sized trout weighing 2,874,638 pounds, 926,411 subcatchables weighing 107,139 pounds and 12,839,875 fingerlings weighing 73,038 pounds.

The remaining 98,642 resident fish weighing 93,869 pounds were aged trout broodstock, up from 34,994 fish and 61,074 pounds for 1971-72.

Andromous fish, accounting for 29,450,160 of the number and 841,326 pounds of the weight, included 24,618,402 salmon weighting 519,555 pounds and 4,831,758 steelhead weighing 321,771 pounds.

Warm water fish plants amounted to 980,499 fish weighing 144,206 pounds. The totals were up sharply from the previous year's 683,314 fish and 21,273 pounds as the DFG's Imperial Valley Warmwater Hatchery completed its first full year of production.

The cost of operating all department-financed fish hatcheries during the year was $3,334,929. The average cost per pound of all fish produced was 96 cents.

Arizona State 4-0 in Riverside Tournament

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Arizona State Wednesday extended its record to 4-0 in the annual Riverside Intercollegiate Baseball tournament by winning a pair of games.

But Stanford was handed its first loss in a night game after winning three consecutive contests.

Stanford was beaten by Brigham Young, 8-6, which got home runs by Reed Pew and Doug Coon in the sixth inning off losing pitcher Mike Williamson.

Earlier in the day, Stanford defeated UCLA, 6-4, with catcher Dave Baker hitting a two-run homer in the seventh inning to provide the winning margin.

Arizona State downed Brigham Young, 11-2, and Tulane, 92.

The triumph over Brigham Young was led by second baseman Bump Wills, son of former major league baseball star Maury Wills, who got three hits, including a two-run homer, and drove in four runs. Arizona State shortstop Jeff Oscarson had a three-run double.

The Arizona State victory over Tulane was paced by third baseman Gary Maddox, who collected a double and two singles in the Sun Devils' 14-hit attack,which included a five-run first inning.

The University of California at Riverside downed UCLA 8-4, tallying seven runs in the eighth inning for a come-from-behind win.

Report says Walton may be ABA owner

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A sportscaster says ABC-TV would like to get back into broadcasting pro basketball if UCLA star Bill Walton became part owner of an American Basketball Association team that would play here.

ABC-TV used to broadcast games of the National Basketball Association but CBS-TV is televising NBA contests this season after winning rights in negotiations. CBS-TV formerly broadcast ABA games.

The sportscaster, Stu Nahan, said on KABC-TV, Los Angeles, that he and another newsman, Terry Phillips, learned ABC-TV would televise ABA games next season with two provisions:

—That Walton would play for the Los Angeles ABA franchise whether the current ABA entry in San Diego moved here or another team was brought into the city.

—That Walton would be part owner of such a Los Angeles team, and that it would be given territorial rights to players from this area.

Nahan said this arrangement would enable stars like UCLA's Keith Wilkes and Tommy Curtis, the University of Southern California's Dan Anderson and Long Beach State's Roscoe Pondexter to join a team built around Walton.

Harness races cancel programs on Sundays

LOS ALAMITOS — The Southern California Racing Association announced Wednesday morning at Los Alamitos Race Course that due to the gasoline shortage, harness racing on Sunday nights will be discontinued beginning this Sunday and a "regular" Monday through Saturday racing schedule will be adopted starting next week.

"The Sunday night racing was done strictly on an experimental basis with our fans the final judges," SCRA management said. "We have heard more than one complaint about fans having problems purchasing gasoline on Sundays and so we have agreed to discontinue the schedule in favor of a Monday through Saturday plan."

The schedule goes into effect this weekend with no racing planned Sunday night and the Monday through Saturday program beginning next week with post time 7:45 pm. all six nights.

Smart cookie avoids issue

By ERMA BOMBECK

Last night, in my dreams, I saw my own tombstone. It read:

ERMA BOMBECK
Girl Scout Cookie Capt. (Ret.)
G.S. Cookie Sale
Feb. 15 — March 30, 1974
Her motto: BE PREPAID

As I tossed and turned, my mind went back to six months ago when I was your average goof-off mother who was allergic to children, bazaars, booster clubs, PTSA open house, Little Leagues, Future Farmers of America noodle suppers, raffle tickets and pillow case bingo.

Then one day I was approached by the Committee to Elect Cookie Captain and all of that changed. The three of them stood in front of the door and smiled, "The peacetime cookie corps needs you."

"But surely you remember I have a maternity deferment," I smiled.

"The kid is 15 years old now," they said, "and we need officers who can lead."

I led the entire troop into bankruptcy which is pretty much what you could expect from a woman who pays for school milk by check. . daily. In February, I assembled the troop together and told them to get out and sell. ("There is no need to salute, Mary Ida"). I told them to leave no stones or grandparents unturned and to remember God is on our side. (I put Him down for two boxes of Scot Teas.)

On the day of delivery, I was up to my chair rail molding in Girl Scout cookies and called the girls to tell them to pick them up. "Hello, Gloria, this is Mrs. Bombeck and. . Mrs. BOMBECK. . .you remember the cookie pusher down the street?"

"Oh," she said, "well, listen my grandmother is sick and doesn't need 30 boxes and my mom's freezer conked out and she can't use 18 boxes and. . "

And so it went. I have never heard so many excuses for canceled orders in my life. I have rolled chicken in cookie crumbs, used them for tips, made earrings out of them, fed them to birds, peddled them in massage parlors, dropped them in water to cure headaches, used them for fertilizer and for bridge prizes.

What started out to be neat, efficient records of sales and returns now looks like a scratch pad in the Hong Kong office of H. & R. Block. I told my husband about my dream and mentioned that I saw a pigeon perched on my tombstone.

He said it takes one to know one.

U.S. said endangering itself by cutting aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Robert S. McNamara of the World Bank says the United States would only be hurting itself by refusing to aid the developing countries.

Noting one third of this country's raw materials come from the poorer nations and $15 billion in U.S. exports go to them, the former defense secretary said:

"So, in the narrowest possible way . . . our destiny is linked to the destiny of the developing countries ... it is in our interest to help advance their economy and to help ensure political stability in those countries."

"We are an interdependent world," said McNamara Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press. "And if we ever needed a lesson in that we got it in the oil crisis."

McNamara said it was "the droughts of Africa and Asia .. and our failure to support a world food reserve system that would meet these drought conditions ... that have raised the price of bread in the United States."

Commenting on a recent House vote against a bill which would provide low cost loans to poorer nations, McNamara said he thought public support for the measure expressed in Senate hearings might cause it to survive.

"Its defeat would be a tragedy," McNamara said, because "the International Development Commission for which the bill would provide funds is the largest source of economic assistance to the hundreds of millions of people in the poorest countries of the world ... almost all of which are totally dependent on these funds."

Crushed auto returns $197

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Recently when Armco Steel announced it was paying $105 a ton for scrap metal, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pleshek of Dayton wanted to know if the company would buy their old car.

Today, the Pleshek's drove their 1961 Ford Station wagon to the Middletown works of Armco where they received $197 and watched the car crushed into scrap.

Mrs. Pleshek said she thought it was a "good way of getting rid of an eyesore and getting some extra money."

Newport Beach police crack burglary ring

NEWPORT BEACH (UPI) — Police broke up a crime ring responsible for more than 170 burglaries in Orange County in a far-ranging operation that netted the suspects between $100,000-200,000, detectives reported.

Three members of the alleged gang were jailed and between five and 10 other suspected members of the ring were still being hunted.

Arrested were Paul Frederick Fulkerson, 27, Patrick Moreland Dowell, 25, and James Dowell Spradlin, 26.

Detectives said the gang was responsible for at least 70 burglaries in the Newport Beach area alone, with an estimated 25 break-ins each at Fullerton, Garden Grove, Santa Ana and Buena Park.

Detective Pat O'Sullivan said the operations were identical in each case. The group operated boldly in daylight hours, entering private homes by forcing doorknobs. He said neighbors often saw the burglars in the act, but the members were so cool and composed they weren't reported.

The original information which led to the arrests, O'Sullivan said, was the result of a tip from an informant.

Bridge

Hubbies often play 'dummy'

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is a certain husband-wife syndrome in bridge which causes the husband to want to play most of the dummies.

The Culbertsons suffered from this, as may be seen from today's hand.

Ely had no good reason to take Jo out of three notrump. She had heard his three spade bid and elected to try for game in notrump.

Opening lead — ♦Q

Three notrump would have made easily. However, Ely went to four spades and it was up to Hal Sims to lead.

Hal decided that an attack would be the best defense and chose to open his queen of diamonds.

Ely went right up with dummy's ace and played ace and jack of spades. Hal went right up with his king and led his second diamond. Dorothy won and returned a low diamond. This made it impossible for Ely to shut out Hal's nine of trumps and there was still a heart loser.

Her problem a lazy dad

By JEAN ADAMS

HELPING: (Q) My mom has a problem with my dad. He doesn't do anything. My mom always ends up doing it. What can she do? And what can I do to help? — Daughter, Age 13, in Texas.

(A) You can offer to do whatever chore you are capabable of doing to ease your mother's load. You can also mention to her that for the book my husband and I wrote, "The Emerging Couple," I talked with many men and learned that most of them were willing to help with household jobs. Your father might be willing to help if your mother talked seriously with him about her need for help.

But let her do the talking, if any, about that to him.

BOY-BOY? (Comment You printed a letter: "I am feeling the happiness and pains of love. There is this certain someone. After a while love grew in me toward this someone. Almost every minute I am thinking of this someone . . . There is just one problem. This certain person may not want to be a part of me and it hurts to think of that. What can I do to get my mind off this certain person? — Lovesick Boy, 15, in Connecticut."

Your anwer shows you assumed this boy was referring to a girl? Yet it seems likely that he is in love with another boy. You should reprint the letter and explain that if he is indeed in love with another boy that he should not be ashamed but should attempt to get to know the boy better, and if he then does not expect a strongly negative response he might feel free to let the other boy know his feelings. — Sympathetic Male in Pennsylvania.

(A) You read into the letter what you wanted to read into it. I cannot keep you from doing that. But I CAN warn boys (and girls, too) that the world is loaded with people who are eager to lead them along questionable paths. You seem to be one of those people.

(Jean Adams reads every letter but regrets that she cannot send personal answers. Address your letter to Jean Adams, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Tex. 77001.)

Acquitted man faces charge of littering

HUNTINGTON, West Va. (UPI) — Robert Spears, 27, acquitted Monday of murdering a motorcycle gang leader whose body was weighted and dropped into the Ohio River, was charged Tuesday with littering the river "with the carcass of a dead animal, to wit, Rocco Thompson."

Spears was freed on $500 bond pending arraignment April 1. If convicted, he could be fined between $20 to $50 for littering a public stream with the remains of a dead animal.

He had been accused of shooting Thompson, a member of "The Avengers" motorcycle gang. Spears testified he killed Thompson last July when the cyclist threatened to shoot a woman.

Spears and two other men then allegedly tied a 30-pound metal grate to Thompson's body and dumped it in the Ohio River. The body was found several days later.

Missouri town also had invasion of birds

DEXTER, Mo. (UPI) — The invasion of 10 million birds into Graceham, Md., brings back memories for residents of this small, southeast Missouri community.

Between 15 million and 20 million starlings and blackbirds roosted in trees on the outskirts of this town of 5,600 residents nine years ago.

Bird droppings became six inches deep in the wooded grove where they took up residence in February, 1965, and by April, federal health officials reported 965 southeast Missouri residents suffered at least mild cases of histoplasmoisis.

The lung disease was carried, officials said, in more than 25 per cent of the leavings of the huge flocks plaguing the town.

Physicians were flown to the area from U. S. Public Health Service offices in Kansas City and elsewhere. Residents were directed to stay clear of the roosting areas, which were near several schools.

Stories of those weeks reflect the problems that Graceham residents now are having were the same as those experienced then.

Dexter officials first turned to thoughts of poisoning the birds.

"Most poisons that would kill the birds would also be poisonous to humans," Missouri University biologist Leoroy Korscheen said.

City council President Gene Nichols took the position that the birds were migratory creatures and should be exterminated by the state.

But officials were afraid to destroy the roost. They noted that during colder periods the birds just moved closer to the heart of town and available heat, and they feared if the roosts were destroyed they would take up permanent residence in the Stoddard County community.

As the weeks passed, the mayor contracted histoplasmoisis. Officials treated the roosts. Various explosions and mass shootings were tried.

But apparently, the birds just left when they got tired of Dexter.

Crafts shop robbed

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — Two young men, one with a small pistol, robbed the Carousel Crafts shop at 15846 Gale Ave. Tuesday afternoon. The victim, Irene Rogers, 35, surrendered the money when the man drew the gun after first asking to see a potted plant, sheriff's deputies said.

College to show 'Birth of Planet'

AZUSA — "The Birth of a Planet" will be the subject of Citrus College planetarium shows during the month of April.

The hour-long show, open to the public at no charge, will be held each Thursday evening during the month, except April 11 during spring vacation, at 7 p.m.

'Paarungen' film slated at Scripps

CLAREMONT — "Paarungen," an English language movie based on Strindberg's drama "Dance of Death," will be shown at 7:30 p.m. April 3 in the Humanities Center Auditorium at Scripps College.

The color film tells of a marriage which has become a constant battlefield because of the couple's inner emptiness and loneliness. And old friend tries to intercede, only to become one of the combatants.

Produced by Michael Verhoeven, the film stars Lilli Palmer, Paul Verhoeven and Karl Michael Vogler.

Co-billed will be "Deutschland-Spiegel," a German language newsreel.

Both films are being shown under the auspices of the German faculty of Scripps College. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

A consumer strikes back

Complaining for fun and profit

By TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK — (NEA) — While sitting in his doctor's waiting room, an hour past his appointment time, it dawned on Ralph Charell that he was being had.

And he decided to do something: complain. When later he received the physician's bill, Charell responded with a bill of his own.

"You kept me waiting an hour," he explained, "and I charge $50 an hour for my time. I will subtract your bill of $35 from mine of $50. Doctor, you owe me $15."

Audacity is second only to originality with Ralph Charell. As indeed it must be Listed by the Guinness Book of Records as "The World's Most Successful Complainer," Charell uses intrepedity as a kind of commercial judo in a carniverous marketplace where he believes the ordinary consumer is otherwise unilaterally disarmed.

Usually, his shameless brass works. His personal and meticulously kept records indicate that in the past decade he has turned ordinary complaints — to department stores, to repairmen, to employers — into $75,000 profit. "That's above and beyond refunds and such things," he emphasizes, "the $75,000 is PROFIT."

The renumeration has not always been monetary. In the case of the feud with his doctor, Charell's profit was merely better service: "He didn't pay me the $15 bill. But I can assure you the next time I had an appointment, he saw me on time."

Usually, though, Charell feels his complaints warrant financial return. When he complained to a New York men's shop that three purchased suits did not fit, he not only got his money back but an additional $20 for cabfare. When he griped to a hotel manager that his room was noisy, 200 was deleted from the account. When he was splattered with some harmless dust from a construction site he pressed successfully for $200 "damages."

Often, Charell's rewards have come with surprising simplicity. He says he sometimes orders merchandise, then sends a complaint immediately afterwards. This "Complain Now, Pay Later" policy permits recriminations to begin with the solution instead of the problem. He claims goods which could normally be expected to arrive in months, this way arrives in days.

More often, however, Charell finds he must match wits and stamina with unwilling merchandizers, industries, et al. Several years ago he complained to the New York Telephone Co. about a balky phone. When he requested a new number, he was turned down. For the next three years he bombarded the company with anger, records, pleadings — all to no avail.

Finally, in desperation, he told the company that he was going to advise as many people in America as possible to fold, spindle and mutilate their computerized telephone bills, causing severe disruption of the company's accounting. He got a new number, and $208 in compensation.

However easy or difficult the complaint fight, Charell insists he uses no special powers or muscle on his side. A non-practicing attorney, he does have some superior knowledge of the legal ramifications of consumer-company relations, but other than this he says anyone can do what he does and usually win.

Actually, Charell would like to see everyone do what he does. He says most Americans are, by nature, 97-pound weaklings in consumer affairs. He says most people are brought up to be victims, to turn the other cheek or to be losers.

He tells the story of the man paying hundreds of dollars for an advertised luxury cruise in the Mediterranean, which turned out to be a slave ship in which the man was chained to an oar; when the cruise finally ended, the man, a typical consumer, approached the organizer and said politely: "Excuse me, I've never been on a cruise before. How much does one tip the whipper?"

Charell would turn the meek to bold; he wants the consumer to inherit his rightful deserts. What with services ever deteriorating, merchandise going from shabby to impossible, and bloated corporations retreating almost entirely from public contact, American consumers must fight back.

"Everything," Charell says optimistically, "can be altered to the customer's advantage."

He does not advocate outlandishness here. He says the primary foundation of successful complaining is correct complaining. "Be right. I never initiate a complaint unless it's completely justified."

When the complaint is legitimate, Charell suggests perserverance, faultless record keeping and sophistication. "When you write to a company, use good stationery. Personally, I use a Tiffany brand. Nobody bothers with a bum."

To be sure, Charell never plays the bum. Occasionally, he finds the best tact is to plead helplessness, this way a company official may "take pity on me — like an animal in a trap."

But normally he takes more direct action.

When he was informed once this his apartment building was being torn down, thus the renter wanted to break the lease, Charell held out almost until the wrecker ball arrived. By so doing he raised the likelihood the massive construction project would be delayed at enormous cost to the builder and thus was able to negotiate a nifty $25,000 settlement.

Regardless of tactic, Charell has rarely lost a complaint. In fact, he has been so successful he may be reaching something of a grumbling anticlimax. His exploits in the gripe field have resulted in one book, dozens of television talk show appearances, financial satisfaction and a film company is considering a movie on his life. "Damn," he says, somewhat forlornly, "things are going so good for me I don't have anymore complaints."

Economy without cramps.

Buying a compact car with a six-cylinder engine can make room in your budget. If that compact car is an economical 1974 Chevy Nova 6, you'll also end up with a lot of room in your car. "Automotive Industries' Roominess Index" says no domestic compact at any price has more head and shoulder room, front and rear, than Nova. The roomy, economical Nova 6 comes in three versatile models, 2-door, 4-door and Hatchback. All in all, Nova makes a lot of sense right now.

The 2-Door. The Chevy Nova basic transportation system. Few cars make as much sense as this one. It's small enough on the outside to be easy to park and drive, yet has enough room on the inside for six passengers. The base price for this standard 2-door coupe (shown at left) is $2647.*

NASA engineer feels time ripe for airship's return

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A physicist and aerospace engineer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration thinks the time is right for a return to the airship, those giant gasbags most people wrote off decades ago.

Dewey Havill works in a "think tank" at NASA's Ames Research Center where his mind is given free rein to ponder any concept it wants. And for more than two years now he's thought about little else than a dirigible that would someday carry cargo, commuters and fight forest fires.

That may seem like an impossible dream but Havill, who laughingly calls himself a "mad scientist," talks with the tone of a realist.

He works in the shadow of the giant hanger that once held the Navy airship Macon at Moffett Field and knows well the shortcomings of the dirigibles of the 1930s. When the Macon crashed in a storm off the California coast in the 30s it brought an end to the Navy's venture into rigid airships.

"That's one reason advocates of airships don't make much headway," Havill said. "They too often want a return to the type of craft used in those days."

Havill, a 23-year veteran with NASA who has extensive background in space guidance system work, envisions a much different airship.

"In the first place, we'd have to start off relatively small," he said. "A candidate for such a small vehicle is a semibuoyant, lifting-body which is a hybrid between a dirigible and a vertical takeoff airplane."

A little of the helicopter would be thrown in, he said.

During his studies of the airship, Havill produced weighty papers into the feasibility of such a modern craft.

Much of the documents are technical but there's enough futuristic speculation to interest any layman.

He sees them flying between San Francisco and Los Angeles, hauling commuters as an auxiliary of the Bay Area Rapid Transit Sstem and dumping thousands of gallons of water on forest fires.

While many BART commute trains are idled when not carrying passengers, the airships in the system would be used to bring in cargo from ships off shore.

Havill's craft would be about 200 feet long and use steam to heat its airbag, on the same principle as hot air balloons. It could takeoff almost straight up, getting away from the giant land area needed by the old blimps.

"She'd travel at speeds between 100 and 200 mph," he said.

He admits the airship can't compete with some conventional craft under certain conditions, particularly at longer ranges.

"However, at short ranges, the advantages of high cruise speeds decrease significantly," he said.

He feels that the real competition for the airship won't come from airplanes, but from helicopters.

"At short ranges, both semibuoyant vehicles and helicopters become competitive."

Both crafts have their advantages and drawbacks and Havill thinks it is "mission capability" that will win out for the airship.

"A town in Arizona recently expressed an interest in using a blimp, instead of a helicopter, for air patrols and traffic control," he said.

A newsman, recalling the number of 'copters shot down in Vietnam, asked if the airship wouldn't offer an easy target.

"The Goodyear blimp hardly makes a journey without somebody putting a slug in it," he said. "It causes such little trouble that they sometimes go unnoticed for days."

In fact, Havill's study concluded that safety would be the future airship's great advantage.

"If a conventional dirigible loses power, it will float away at the mercy of the winds," he said.

"If a heavier-than-air vehicle loses power, its ground impact can frequently be catastrophic. However, if the type of craft we are considering loses power, it will fall and impact at a speed of about 35 mph, which shouldn't be that bad."

Havill's role in the airship of the future has come to an end.

He retires from NASA soon and intends to sail his boat and relax.

Bird-brain can pick a nutritional diet

By DR. FRANK MILLER.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Aha! I've got you on one this time. In the past, you have said in effect that family pets don't know what's good for them so the owner has to pick out the proper food. Recently though, you indicated a parakeet should be given a whole different variety of seeds and things so that he can pick out what he NEEDS! Are you trying to tell a dinky little bird knows more about nutrition than my dachshund Divot? Baloney!—G. McT.

Dear G.McT.: Right. You are wrong. On a long-term, self-selection, free-choice, food basis, the "birdbrain" would, undoubtedly, do a better job of supplying its personal needs than your "sausage hound." Most pooches pick up poor nutritional habits from their owners. Occasionally, a bird will also, but on the average, a pet bird (when given the opportunity) will do a better job of rounding out its rations nutritionally than would most domesticated dogs, including Divot.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My new pup hasn't lost any hair but he does scratch a lot. I was told he had sarcoptic mange which can be treated. I like the puppy well enough but a friend said that a dog with mange has to have all of the hair cut off and it takes months to treat it and that it might not cure it anyway and that it really isn't worth it.

I'm not really up to all of that and want your honest opinion.—F.R.

Dear F.R.: When the puppy is in reasonably good health othersie, the average case of pidly to treatment and clipping the hair is unnecessary. An advanced, untreated case, already showing considerable hair loss and thickened, badly inflamed skin, could be difficult to cure, though even these respond well to treatment if there are no complications.

Demodectic mange (caused by a different mite) is much more difficult to treat, requiring weeks or occasionally even months to respond. Your friend is certainly no friend to your puppy and is obviously less qualified to give you advice than is your veterinarian. I hope you went ahead with the treatment and, if so, your puppy is probably cured by now. Early treatment not only brings about a better response, it also lessens the likelihood that you could contract Sarcoptic mange from your pup. Sarcoptic mange mites on a human would cause only a transient skin rash but even this could be a bit disquieting.

Mondale believes he can put U.S. together again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale believes the old Democratic coalition can ride again, that his party can be unified, and that new faces may ultimately triumph over old.

"Fritz" Mondale also believes he may be the new face needed to rally the Democratic Party, resurrect the coalition, and— perhaps—capture the White House as its presidential nominee.

"I think I could be a good President," he told an interviewer as he thoughtfully pondered the idea in between puffs of his cigar.

"I think I could unify the country," he said. "I like to think I could make a contribution toward a peaceful and sane world."

In pursuit of his presidential ambitions, the Minnesota Democrat spoke in more than half the states last year. Thus far this year, he has spoken to party regulars in more than a dozen others.

An "exploratory committee," made up of his Minnesota supporters, has been formed to help pay the costs of coast-to-coast jet travel.

The repeated exposure apparently is beginning to pay off. A survey of Democratic National Committee members, state chairmen and governors earlier this year showed Mondale in first place as their choice for presidential nominee.

His forays into the hinterlands have made one overwhelming impression on him—"There's a desire for party unity out there that we haven't seen in a long time."

The 1972 McGovern disaster happened because Democrats "failed to keep the allegiance and trust of the great mass of middle class Americans."

But next time, Mondale believes, "the old (Roosevelt) coalition" of poor, minorities, labor, and middle Americans can be reborn and made to work—"I can see a broad coalition forming now. That's where my heart is."

Because of Watergate and an inflation-fed economy, "We've got an opportunity to build a coalition that cuts across America," Mondale said.

The key to that coalition, he is convinced, is organized labor and AFL-CIO President George Meany's army of labor.

"I consider that a very important element in any chance for victory," he said. "You have to have the family together in order to win."

He is undeterred by the shadows cast on his fledgling quest by the possibility of two heavier contenders—Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Henry M. Jackson, DWash.

He sees himself as a new fresh face in an old political crowd at a time when Watergate seems to have turned voters against "the old political crowd."

Surveying the field of possible 1976 candidacies, he ponders aloud that "if one of us can show a new face, a new approach to government, I think there can be some surprising changes . . . and in a hurry."

Couple given humane award

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The city's St. Francis of Assisi Award has been given to a couple who cared for lost animals and taught children to be kind to animals.

Mr. and Mrs. Felipe Chavez, who have been foster parents as well, were chosen by the city's Department of Animal Regulation commission because they "have practiced the humane virtue of care whenever children and animals are concerned."

RIEDE MARIONETTES TO PERFORM AT POMONA VALLEY CENTER SAT.

A special treat for young and old during Pomona Valley Center's Anniversary Week Carnival of Events will be three performances by the Riede Marionettes.

They will be performing on the mall at 1:00, 2:30 and 4:00 PM Saturday, March 30. The performances are free to all friends of Pomona Valley Center.

The puppet show will be presented by the Richard J. Riede family of Upland. Mr. & Mrs. Riede became interested in puppets several years ago, and took instruction from Harry Burnett, a professional puppeteer. They have been performing along with their children for eight years. During this time they have constructed over 150 marionettes, and have four complete shows. Included in the collection are many of the traditional trick puppets. The Riede's make all of their puppets, scenery, costumes, and script. The children help during the performance, which enables them to have several marionettes on the stage at one time.

The family has given their show throughout the So. Calif. area. Each year a great deal of time is spent in preparing a completely new show.

This year "Jack and the Beanstalk" is being featured. There is a very large giant and even a chicken that lays golden eggs, and a fireman clown act. The "Three Billy Goats Gruff" has always been presented, and don't be too surprised if you see a few bugs appearing, too!

CARNIVAL OF VALUES, CARNIVAL OF PRIZES FEATURED DURING PVC ANNIVERSARY WEEK!

Pomona Valley Center will be the center of excitement and prizes through Saturday, March 30. $600 in cash will be given away in Bank Nite drawing at 2:00 p.m. Sat., and from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. hundreds of dollars worth of prizes and gifts will be given away through our big BONANZA BALLOON BUST. Some of the prizes include guest passes to the Hollywood Wax Museum, Knott's Berry Farm, Lion Country Safari and Universal Studios. Other gifts include balloons, candy, and gift certificates.

There's plenty to see and do at Pomona Valley Center this weekend. Things are happening all weekend to delight young and old. Bring the family!

Remember When? Old Time Photos Available at PVC

Have you ever looked at one of those old browned photographs of your grandparents and thought it would be fun to have such a picture of yourself or your children? Well, now it is possible . . . this weekend at Pomona Valley Center.

Just one of the many Carnival of Events at PVC during Anniversary week will be our own Old Time Photographer. Mr. Duane Mayfield will be on the mall Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 28, 29 & 30, with the set, costumes and equipment to bring your picture back from another century. In just a few short minutes you can have an antique picture of yourself!

Mr. Mayfield has been ageing people only for a couple of years, but he has already built a great demand for his services. He just recently finished a stay at the new Eagle Rock Plaza, and is presently at Los Cerritos.

And . . . he will be at Pomona Valley Center looking forward to altering your image this weekend. He'll be on the mall.

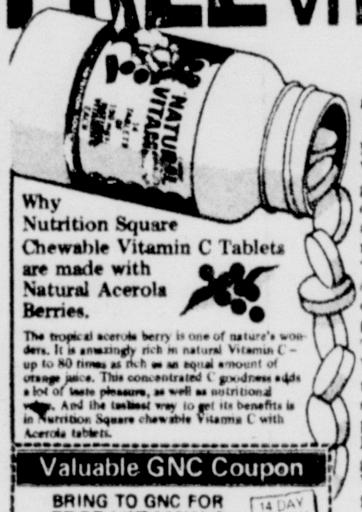
FREE Fruit-Flavored Chewable, Natural VITAMIN C



Why Nutrition Square Chewable Vitamin C Tablets are made with Natural Acerola Berries.

The tropical acerola berry is one of nature's wonders. It is amazingly rich in natural Vitamin C — up to 80 times as rich as an equal amount of orange juice. This concentrated C goodness adds a lot of taste pleasure, as well as nutritional value. And the tastiest way to get its benefits is in Nutrition Square chewable Vitamin C with Acerola tablets.

Taste it . . . and enjoy the most delicious and complete Vitamin C nutrition that ever melted in your mouth!

Nutritional science knows that you need Vitamin C every day. It affects every single cell in your body. Yet your body can't store it. But, without a sufficient supply of Vitamin C, your body can't manufacture a special cement called "collagen" -- the cement that holds every single cell in the body together. So you can see how important it is to be sure of getting enough Vitamin C.

That's where Nutrition Square Natural Vitamin C with Acerola comes in. These new chewable Vitamin C tablets have such a wonderfully tangy true-fruit taste, people love to chew them like candy. Even kids who can't swallow pills will gladly chew their daily Nutrition Square Vitamin C with Acerola. They'll look forward to its melt-in-your-mouth goodness so much, they'll remind you to give it to them. (In fact, they'll probably ask for more -- but how many you give them is between you and your doctor.)

We're so sure that, once your family tastes Nutrition Square Natural Vitamin C with Acerola tablets, everyone in your family will insist on them . . . we're offering you this free taste test.

Just fill out the coupon and bring it in to any of the General Nutrition Centers listed here . . . and we'll give you your FREE 14-day supply.

AREA HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS COMPETE IN PVC SPIRIT RACE

Students from eight area high schools are competing in Pomona Valley Center's first High School Spirit Race as part of PVC's Anniversary Week celebration.

The object of the race is to find out which school in the Valley can generate the most school spirit. To the winning school, PVC will send "Lucille", in concert, to the high school for an afternoon assembly.

Winning is easy. Each day high school sign-up sheets are located on the PVC mall, and each day a student signs his name and high school he gets a point. Students may re-sign each day during Anniversary Week. The school with the most total points by 6:00 PM Saturday, March 30, is the winner.

Sporting Goods Shop

Opening in early April is Pomona Valley Center's new sporting goods shop, Doc Frimodig's Ski Show. The shop will display a western decor and visitors will feel they have entered an authentic old west town as they walk down its boardwalk. The shop will feature ski equipment, water skiis, surfboards, tennis equipment, bikes and sports clothing.

FAMILY SEASON TICKETS

The family that participates together—stays together. Family season tickets are now available for all home football and basketball games at Cal Poly, Pomona, a total of 15 games. For the very minimal cost of $35, your family can help root the Broncos on to success and have many great evenings together. Family season tickets are available at Ewart's Men's Store at Pomona Valley Center.

NEW FOOTBALL COACHING STAFF AT CAL POLY, POMONA

The Cal Poly Broncos football team are being stampeded by a new wrangler this season. Pomona Valley Center welcomes Coach Andy Vinci and his staff to our community. Coach Vinci comes to Cal Poly, Pomona bringing a new enthusiasm to the campus. He has been in college coaching for several years. He was a member of the Cal State Los Angeles National Championship coaching staff in the mid-sixties. His total College record is 56 wins, 10 losses and two ties. This winning tradition will be continued with the active support of Pomona and San Gabriel Valley comunities in the University's "Growth into Greatness."

Apache Creek

Pomona Valley Center announces the opening of the new restaurant, Apache Creek, on the corner of East End and Holt. Cooking with a western flair, the specialty of the house, is Apache Creek's original Mesquite Steak.

ROCK GROUP IS PRIZE IN SCHOOL SPIRIT CONTEST

The rock group, Lucille, will be playing in an afternoon assembly for the winning school of PVC's High School Spirit Race.

Lucille has set out upon the local concert scene spreading the essence of excitement with an unleashed fervor, doing what they want to do and doing it well, even though the group is in relative infancy. The band — Mike Coville and his myriad of keyboards; P.J. Duncan with his vocal leadership; Jim Exon with the deep vibrations from his bass; Bob Hughes with his powerful drumming; and Dan Linck with his spectrum of lead guitar essence—have taken upon themselves the task of bringing the Excitement of Rock to local area audiences for half a year now, have built the majority of their lighting and amplification equipment, and have written much of their material to make Lucille a very important extension of themselves.

Lucille has found its way through the beginning rigors of obscurity that hampers every new group to a position of considerable local acclaim.

Boy wins bike

Forty kites sailed the skies at Pomona Valley Center's Kite Flying Contest last Saturday. Ed Carp of Chino won a 10-speed Peugeot bicycle for having the highest flying kite. Other winners were: Heidi Tyson of Montclair, Paul Temple of Pomona, and Steve Valdez of Ontario.

Easter Bunny

Pomona Valley Center has received advanced word from its friend, the Easter Bunny. He and one of his helpers will be on the mall April 8 through the 18th to take pictures with the children and pass out his favorite Easter treats. He also told the Center that he would be looking for a home for some live baby bunnies.

ANTIQUE VEHICLES ON DISPLAY AT PVC

Robert Babcock and his collection of antique trucks are coming to Pomona Valley Center this weekend. The Montclair resident whose "thing" is finding, restoring and showing ancient vehicles will display his oldies but goodies along the mall at the center.

Babcock, 41, has been collecting and restoring old vehicles since 1968. He has a 1908 Cadillac delivery truck, a 1913 International, a 1921 Hupmobile panel truck, a 1920 Sampson panel, a 1904 Reo pickup, a 1915 Ford panel, a 1915 Ford roadster pickup, and a 1910 Couple Gear Electric.

The Couple Gear Electric, a favorite of Babcocks, looks like a match box riding huge roller skate. It sports, among other things, an odd three-sided windshield and a rather miserly wooden cargo area sitting atop a bulky metal frame.

While Babcock intends to add to his collection and someday to open a museum, you can see the result of his restoration work this weekend at Pomona Valley Center.
